HELENA EARTHQUAKE CAUSES WILD PANIC

One Man Killed When Store Fronts Topple Into Streets—Terrorized Citizens Rush to Open Spaces—Fires Started by Shock Are Quickly Brought Under Control

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 18 (AP).—A violent earthquake tonight shook western Montana, tearing at the mountainous backbone to the continental divide, and spreading its full force in Helena, where one death, several injuries and widespread damage resulted.

The tremor also extended into Washington, Idaho and the southern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Minor fires started by the earth shocks here were squelched quickly, but estimates of the earthquake damage by city officials ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

NEW SCHOOL DAMAGED

A new half-million-dollar high school, which went into use this fall, suffered severely in the tremor. A chimney was knocked down and bricks fell from walls that had not yet been weathered.

Colonel E. H. Williams, commander of the 163rd Infantry, Montana National Guard, ordered members of the company to report in uniform. The men were concentrating, but as yet martial law had not been declared.

With a roar and a rumble, the earthquake struck Helena at 9:47 p.m. (M.S.T.), and for an hour and a half jostled the Montana capital with successive minor shocks.

As store fronts toppled into the streets here and the city was plunged into darkness and confusion, citizens dashed into open parks and families sped in automobiles to an open valley.

WIDE AREA AFFECTED

Almost the entire western half of the state felt the shifting of the earth's substructure. Reports of shocks which resulted in negligible damage came from Bozeman, Butte, Billings, Missoula, Shelby, and a half dozen smaller cities extending from Yellowstone National Park north to beyond the Canadian border.

Less severe tremors occurred at Spokane and Walla Walla, Wash., and Lewiston, Boise and Moscow, Idaho. Dave Miner, a twenty-seven-year-old negro, was killed when bricks and cornice stones toppled upon him from a swaying Helena building as he ran along the sidewalk. He was the only death reported at midnight.

WAS SIXTIETH SHOCK

The earthquake, the most violent of a series which began a week ago tonight, was counted as the sixtieth over which Helena—had trembled in a seven-day period. The heavy shock, although citizens here had become accustomed to the previous ones, provoked hysteria. Crowds in theatres rushed to the streets, screaming and stampeding. A brick store building on North Main Street trembled, and its front smashed into the street and sent sidewalk pedestrians scampering.

Police hastily organized searching parties to seek probable injured or dead persons under the debris. The Helena Independent said all Continued on Page 3, Column 3

BRITISH SEAMEN TO THE RESCUE

Come to Aid of Italian Liner Aflame After Fatal Explosion

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 18 (AP).—British sailors went to the rescue of Italians today when the liner Ausonia, which was on fire, exploded about the Italian liner Ausonia killed six members of the crew and injured twenty.

The explosions set fire to the vessel as it entered this port from Haifa, Palestine. Despite flames reaching out from the Ausonia, a British sailor aboard a small ship cut the Ausonia's anchor and she was beached. Passengers had been safely removed.

PRAISES RESCUERS
The British hospital ship Maine, on duty in the harbor, went to the aid of the flaming Italian vessel, along with other craft flying the Union Jack. The captain of the Ausonia warmly praised the work of the rescuers.

Most of those killed and injured were on the fueling staff. Three were killed outright and three others died aboard the hospital ship.

Not Easy for Mayor to Judge

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (AP).—Mayor Houde was stumped at the council meeting today. He couldn't make a decision—and he admitted it. Two aldermen, in a heated clash, called one another liars, and then appealed to the mayor for a decision.

"It is hard for me," quoth the mayor, "to say which one is the greater liar."

Killing May Lead To Split Between Peru and Bolivia

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Peruvian Government wired the Bolivian minister at La Paz, Bolivia, today for full details of the killing of a Peruvian, reportedly by two Bolivian carabinieri early in the week, as the affair threatened to grow into an international incident. The Peruvian, a pilot of the Tiliaca Lake steamer Inca, was shot at the Bolivian port of Guayaquil.

Crocodile Deals With Italian Spy

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas).—The jaws of a crocodile and the vigilance of Ethiopian troops today put an end to the activities of two Italian spies. One of the spies, fleeing from the country, was devoured by a crocodile as he tried to swim across a river in the Ethiopian jungles.

NEW CHIEF OF STAFF APPOINTED

Sir Cyril Deverell, Distinguished War Leader, Will Take Post In April

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP).—General Sir Cyril John Deverell, one of Britain's distinguished war leaders, today was appointed chief of the Imperial General Staff, in succession to Field Marshal Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd. The appointment will be effective next April.

General Deverell has been general officer commanding the Eastern command since 1933 and an A.D.C. general to the King since 1934. He is sixty-one years of age and has served in the British Third Division from the battle of the Somme in 1916 until the end of the war. He was mentioned nine times in dispatches.

Field Marshal Montgomery-Massingberd, sixty-four, climaxed a brilliant military career recently when he gained his field marshal's baton.

Remnant of Command Cut Off by Ethiopians Stagers Back to Eritrea After Agonizing Experiences—Claim Desert Wells Poisoned

(Copyright, 1935, by the Havas News Agency)

ASMAR, Eritrea, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas).—The straggling remnants of an Italian detachment which invaded Ethiopian territory on October 2 stumbled over the border into Eritrea tonight with a harrowing tale of death and horror. Strewed over the scorching Danakil Plateau lay the bodies of many of the Blackshirt troops who marched across the Plain of Hissu a little more than two weeks ago to signal the beginning of Italy's campaign in Ethiopia.

Cut off from their base by fierce Danakil tribesmen and decimated in savage guerrilla warfare, the troops wandered over the tropical wasteland south of Mount Musasa in a futile search for the Awash River.

Earlier this week reports from the

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, ADUWA, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas).—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Premier Mussolini's new East African war chief, took the field in earnest tonight as the Italian army on the northern front began preliminary operations in its scheduled drive on Makale.

Reliable reports said the advance guard of the blackshirt offensive already had penetrated to within twenty miles of the strategic city, sixty-five miles southeast of here. Bombing planes already have made a foray over Makale and have dropped a few bombs. It was learned from a qualified source. No casualties were reported.

WILL CONTINUE IN LEADERSHIP

Premier Bennett Has No Intention of Dropping Out After Party Change

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (AP).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett intends to carry on as leader of the Opposition in the new Parliament. This information came from a source close to Mr. Bennett today as Liberal Leader Mackenzie King continued his task of preparing to take over the reins of Government and selecting his Cabinet.

Despite his strenuous campaign during the election, Mr. Bennett is in better health than he has enjoyed for months.

His continuance, of course, does not preclude the possibility of his retirement before the next general election. The maximum term of Parliament is five years, and at the end of another five years Mr. Bennett will be seventy years old.

His intention is merely to carry on for the time being.

CABINET MEETING CALLED
The first since the election and possibly the last meeting of the Bennett Cabinet, has been called for Monday afternoon. Most of the ministers are now back in Ottawa, although one or two are expected to arrive over the week-end. These include Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. ## LORD DUNCANNON NAMED CANDIDATE

Son of Retiring Governor-General To Contest West Wellington as National Conservative

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP).—Viscount Duncannon, son of the Earl of Bessborough, was adopted tonight as National Conservative candidate in West Wellington for the forthcoming general election. Viscount Duncannon is twenty-two years of age.

The Earl of Bessborough had just completed a term as Governor-General of Canada.

The seat at present is held by P. W. Donner, National Conservative. The vote in the 1931 election gave Donner a big majority. The figures are: Donner, 14,487; F. Montague, Labor, 9,277.

WOMEN ON RELIEF MADE TRAFFIC COPS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 18 (AP).—Women on relief—twenty-two of them—became traffic cops today. Equipped each with a red flag, Don Stephens, Federal works administrator at Chickasha, Okla., directed instruction of the group in signaling. He plans to use them in diverting traffic from stretches of road under repair.

Revenues Keep to Budget Forecast
Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, reported yesterday that while no actual figures were available, there was reason to believe that the provincial revenues during the first six months of the fiscal year were well up to budget expectations.

Increases in receipts over last year were reported in many departments, he said, while expenditures had been kept well within the budget.

Assurance Given Of French Help If Italy Attacks

Social Crediters Decide to Contest Calgary Elections

CALGARY, Oct. 18 (AP).—Social Credit candidates will contest the majority, every seat on the City Council and the Public School Board at the civic election, November 20. It was decided tonight at a meeting of Calgary delegates to the central council of the Alberta Social Credit League. The closed session was unanimously in favor of entering the election.

Formal Note Sent to Great Britain—France Will Take Share of Collective Responsibility—Official Communique From Rome Renews Hope of Peaceful Settlement of Dispute

League Guarding Against Profiteering in Sanctions

(Copyright, 1935, by the Havas News Agency)

PARIS, Oct. 18 (CP).—The French Government tonight, in a formal note to Britain, gave assurance that France would help the British fleet if Italy attacked it in reprisal for League of Nations sanctions.

The note followed a similar verbal assurance by Premier Laval to the British Ambassador, Sir George Russell Clerk, earlier today.

M. Laval meanwhile was studying a new Italian proposal for ending the Italo-Ethiopian campaign. Official circles would neither confirm nor deny reports current in diplomatic quarters that the Italian Ambassador, Vittorio Cerruti, on his visit to M. Laval today, outlined the basis on which Italy would consider ending the campaign without further fighting.

AID IS OBLIGATORY

In a nine-page typed document, France asserted that under paragraph three of Article XVI, mutual aid was obligatory in case of reprisals for League sanctions by a covenant-breaking nation.

If Italy, therefore, attacked Britain for trying to enforce League sanctions, the reply said, France would have no choice but to help the British.

If, on the other hand, aggression was provoked by measures taken by Britain on her own responsibility, whatever their motive, it would have to be treated as a new case of aggression and not as reprisal for sanctions, the note said.

The provisions of Article XVI that are particularly pertinent in the present crisis are as follows:

DEATH CLAIMS SCOTTISH PEER

Duke of Buccleuch Passes Away Suddenly—Daughter Is Fiancee of Prince

SELKIRK, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Duke of Buccleuch, father of the fiancée of the King's third son, died early today.

An official bulletin said the duke died quite suddenly at 12:05 a.m. The duke and all the members of the family, including Lady Alice, were at the bedside.

The news was conveyed to the Duke of Gloucester at Buckingham and to the King and Queen at Sandringham Lodge, Norfolk.

PLANS MAY BE ALTERED
Whether the duke's death will cause a further change in the wedding plans for Lady Alice Montagu Douglas-Scott and the Duke of Gloucester was not immediately known. The position will be reconsidered by the authorities today.

The Duke of Buccleuch was seventy-one years old at his father's side after flying from London in one of the Prince of Wales' airplanes. She was in the midst of troupeau shopping yesterday when news reached her that her father's condition had taken a grave turn.

The duke has been seriously ill for several weeks, and it was recently announced that because of his health he would be unable to attend the wedding.

Fascist Students Start a Boycott

ROME, Oct. 18 (AP).—A boycott against Britain was started today by Fascist university students. The student publication Roma Fascista warned merchants "systematically to weed out" British products from their shelves and refrain from restocking. The students threatened publication of the names of merchants who refused to co-operate.

THIRD FATAL ACCIDENT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18 (AP).—The third fatal accident of the shooting season in Manitoba was recorded today, when Stanley Tony, seventeen, died in hospital. Tony was shot in the side when a shotgun carried by a companion accidentally discharged.

Pardon Is Granted When Discovery Is Made of Innocence

WYOMING GOVERNOR CONVINCED ESCAPED CONVICT NOT GUILTY OF MURDER—Review of Case Follows Rearrest After Ten Years' Freedom

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 18 (AP).—Governor Leslie A. Miller today granted a full pardon to John McClellan, forty-nine, who was arrested at Lewiston, Idaho, in July after having escaped ten years ago from the Wyoming penitentiary, where he was serving a life term for murder.

The clemency resulted from a long study of the case by the Wyoming Pardon and Parole Board. McClellan's friends at Lewiston and Pullman, Wash., urged the board to consider leniency.

Governor Miller announced that a review of the testimony showed McClellan had no part in the hold-up slaying of Frank Perle, Rock Springs, Wyo., butcher, in 1923, and was not even in the Rock Springs vicinity.

WON RESPECT

Under the name of "Jack Parker," McClellan lived ten years at Pullman and Lewiston, where he was a respected citizen. He was promoted frequently to executive positions by the mercantile firms which employed him.

HASTENING TO TRADE TREATY

Negotiations With United States to Be Resumed With Little Delay

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (AP).—A temporary lull has developed in negotiations for a trade treaty between Canada and the United States, but well-informed sources have indicated that they will be resumed as soon as the new administration under Premier-Elect Mackenzie King assumes office.

"That the new ministry will move expeditiously in the matter is deduced from post-election statements of Mr. King."

"UNMISTAKABLE VERDICT"

In one statement the Premier-Elect declared the result of the balloting made clear "that a Canadian Government should do all in its power to negotiate trade agreements with all countries willing to trade with Canada on a reciprocal basis." He also regarded the election as an "unmistakable verdict" in favor of "a reciprocal agreement with the United States."

Canada has ten weeks more in which to negotiate before the United States clamps down the discriminatory tariff which Congress empowered President Roosevelt to impose against countries with which no trade treaty had been concluded.

The favored nation treatment enjoyed by Canada expired September 30, but the United States administration extended this to January 1, 1936.

A FURTHER FACTOR

A further factor operating towards a quick conclusion of the contemplated agreement is the advent of the American presidential election campaign.

The belief is expressed that resumption of the conversations will have to await the appointment of Ministers of Finance, National Revenue and Trade and Commerce. The departments of all three are involved in the negotiations.

Ignores Judgment of Higher Tribunals in Dissolving Marriage

Judge Maintains Marriage in Quebec Based on Canon Law—Annuls Union of Roman Catholics Married by Anglican Minister

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (U.P.)—Contrary to a judgment in a similar case last week and reaffirming that marriage of two Roman Catholics by a Protestant clergyman is null and void in Quebec, Mr. Justice Alfred Forest today rendered judgment dissolving the union of Ruby May Coates and Joseph Romanelli. They were married June 1, 1928, by Archdeacon A. P. Gower-Rees in St. George's Anglican Church, Montreal.

Citing judgments of the Supreme Court of Canada and the Privy Council, Mr. Justice Forest last week refused to annul a marriage performed under the same circumstances as the Coates-Romanelli union. Mr. Justice Forest held that the marriage question in this province is based on canon law, and that he would not accept the finding of the higher tribunals.

TO CLARIFY LAW

The court again urged church authorities, Protestant and Roman Catholic, to approach the Quebec Legislature to get the law clarified.

Irrigation Canal in Southern California

Construction work on the All-American Canal in Southern California's Imperial Valley is progressing rapidly. Photo shows a completed portion of the enormous project which is being supervised by the United States Bureau of Reclamation. The canal, extending from Imperial Dam, twenty miles north of Yuma, Ariz., on the Colorado River, to a point several miles west of Calexico, Calif., the cut is 196 feet across the top, its sides sloping to a width of 130 feet at the bottom. Depth of the canal is 16.5 feet.

SEASON IS CONCLUDED

Award of Banksian Jubilee Medal Announced by Horticultural Society

The Victoria Horticultural Society last night, brought to a close one of the most successful competitive seasons in its history. At the annual social and presentation of prizes held in the A.O.F. Hall, trophies were distributed, and the winners of the coveted Banksian medal announced.

A. M. Scott won the specially minted Jubilee Banksian Medal this year for obtaining the highest aggregate of points in the Victoria Horticultural Society's three big exhibitions. The medal will be presented later on its arrival from England.

LARGE GATHERING

A fine programme of entertainment was provided for the evening, and after the presentations, made by J. B. Munro, deputy minister of agriculture, the members adjourned to the social hall, where refreshments were served. The gathering was believed to be the largest the society has ever had, and to commemorate the occasion everyone present was asked to sign a register.

Mr. Munro, in presenting the various trophies and certificates, paid tribute to the high standard of Victoria gardens, and also to the work of the Victoria Horticultural Society in stimulating interest in horticulture. He expressed the opinion that the lower irrigation rates given by the city might have had something to do with the standard being higher this year than in previous years, and commended the City Council for giving citizens such encouragement.

THE PRIZE LIST

The prizes were awarded as follows:

T. R. Bell, Canadian Horticultural Council's Trophy for the best garden on Vancouver Island, 324 points.
R. Battison, silver medal for the best garden on Vancouver Island worked without help, 334 points.
C. Richards, bronze medal for best vegetable garden on Vancouver Island, 182 points.

All the above contests were held by the Vancouver Island Horticultural Society. The following results are of contests sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society:
Class "A," home garden competition—First, challenge cup, A. R. Harness, 334 points; second, Charles Richards, 326 points and third, V. W. Ahlers, 325 points.
Class "B," home garden competition—First, challenge cup, R. Battison, 339 points; second, G. Davis, 332 points; third, P. J. Sarslat, 305 points.

Class "C," home garden competition—First, challenge cup, Mrs. L. McNutt; second, Mrs. A. S. Derman; third, F. T. Rawlins.

MONTHLY CONTEST

Winners of prizes in connection with the monthly competitions conducted at the society's regular meetings: P. Turner, W. A. Noon, Angus McKay, W. R. Nicholls, P. Ingram, F. Moules, A. M. Scott, Mrs. E. W. Darcus, H. O. Simpson, Mrs. R. C. Phippard, F. T. Rawlins, R. Rigby, J. W. Martindale, A. D. Miles, W. L. Lea, T. Wallace, George Little and G. Stott.

Artists who contributed to the evening's programme were as follows: Miss Dora Rawlins, Miss Elsie Friend, Miss Ora Jellison, Miss Edna MacKenzie, Mrs. D. D. McTavish and Ivan Green.

REGISTRATION INCREASED

VANCOUVER, Oct. 18 (U.P.)—Final registration figures at the University of British Columbia show the 1935-36 attendance is 2,061 compared with 1,832 last year. The increase is partly accounted for by the fact that seventy-eight students have registered for the directed reading course in history instituted this year.

HAD HUMOROUS STORY TO GIVE REPORTERS

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (U.P.)—Sir Newton Moore, president of Dominion Steel & Coal Company, was pestered by reporters while boarding the liner Duchess of Bedford. His assurance that he had nothing to say failed to deter the newshounds. Finally he turned on them: "Do you want a good story? I have just received a wire from the King of Kings, the Lion of Judah, asking me to lead the Ethiopian armies. I have with me in my baggage several airplanes and field guns."

SURVIVORS TELL OF SUFFERINGS

report. Its officers, near exhaustion from a forced march of many days, declared they had been able to register Italian soldiers only after seemingly insurmountable hardships. They had been forced to go long stretches without water or food.

The Italian command made every effort to prevent details of the ill-fated venture being made public. No estimate of the casualties was available.

Hayas learned, however, that tribal warriors had poisoned all except a few well-concealed water-holes on the Danakil plateau, and that many of the blackshirt "lost legion" troops had met agonizing deaths after drinking from these wells.

MORE CAPITAL SHIPS NEEDED

Earl of Jellicoe Warns Nation Against Reduction in Naval Strength

LONDON, Oct. 18 (U.P.)—The Earl of Jellicoe, Commander of the Grand Fleet during the first part of the Great War, last night urged an immediate start on the construction of capital ships for the navy.

Speaking at the Navy League Trafalgar Day dinner, he said: "Under present conditions the British Empire does not possess the sea-power vital for its existence. The obvious necessity is to start to build up our navy immediately to adequate strength."

He did not doubt the navy's power to carry out any task in the immediate future, but he was thinking of from five to ten years ahead.

UNHAPPY CONSEQUENCES

From the time of the Spanish Armada onwards, the end of war almost invariably led to a great reduction of British naval strength, with unhappy consequences at the start of the next war, said Jellicoe. Since the Great War ended, the British Navy had been allowed to fall into "deplorable weakness," and as a result the Empire, to a very large extent, was defenceless and had lost a great deal of its influence for good in world affairs.

Winston Churchill, a former First

Lord of the Admiralty, told the gathering there was general agreement with the Government's decision not to weaken the fleet in the Mediterranean at this anxious time.

"We have exercised command of the Mediterranean since the war of the Spanish Succession 230 years ago. No one should need to be told that the safety and the fortunes of Egypt, the Sudan and Palestine depend upon it," he added.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful.

The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 4 1/2 gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-siphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Get details at nearest Ford dealer.

Ottawa Agreements Had Their Part in British Trade Move

Major L. L. Anthes Tells Manufacturers That Dominion Is Progressing in Business Despite Any Belouding of Situation During Election

ALTHOUGH during the recent election campaign the commercial and business situation in Canada had been somewhat belouded, Major L. L. Anthes, of Toronto, a former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, informed the members of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Branch of the C.M.A. yesterday that ever since the first quarter of 1933, Canada had been making very material progress, while Great Britain, with characteristic enterprise, had never let up since the war in recovering her position.

The speaker, who is the head of the Anthes Foundry Limited, said that the statistical department of the League of Nations at Geneva was one of the best sources of information relative to such matters, when he addressed the luncheon meeting in Speedie's Cafe. He pointed out that it could not be expected that Canada could get by without some loss in her trade when the figures from Geneva showed that although there had been some improvement in the quantity of business, the value in gold of the world's trade was only about one-third what it was in 1929.

AGREEMENTS HELPED
"British Industries," a very reliable authority on the subject of trade, had said it could not be expected while conditions remained as they were, and while Europe excluded agricultural products from its markets, that there could be the recovery desired. The article went on to say that British export trade, however, was showing improvement and that for this recovery the Ottawa agreements must be credited with an important part.

Major Anthes stated one of the worst calamities upon Canadian statesmen would be that they had driven an unfair bargain with Motherland. It was gratifying, however, to hear through the avenue of "British Industries" that Great Britain had sustained an increase in trade since 1932 and in part measure this was due to the Ottawa agreements.

SURPASSED UNITED STATES
In addition to this, the Royal Bank in its letter had recently stated that Canada had made more progress towards recovery than had the United States. While the United

R. L. Chalmers, of the Victoria Box & Paper Company, was introduced as a new member of the association.

There were present with Major Anthes at the meeting, Captain P. C. Brown, of New Westminster, second vice-president of the C.M.A.; Major J. A. Wetherston, of Winnipeg, in charge of the branch of the Anthes Foundry there and past chairman of the Prairie division of the C.M.A., and a member of the executive council of the C.M.A., and Hugh Dalton, secretary of the British Columbia division of the C.M.A.

The meeting was presided over by E. W. Izard, chairman of the Victoria and Vancouver Island branch of the organization.

HELENA EARTHQUAKE CAUSES WILD PANIC

its communications were cut off and newspapermen reported they believed they would have to abandon the building.

Windows throughout this Montana capital, nestled among the old mine-burrowed hills, popped out explosively.

RED CROSS PREPARED

Red Cross officials, already fearing that some catastrophe might ensue if the city were ordered its personnel into action to take care of the injured or homeless in event the earthquake causes greater damage.

The series of shocks started early last Saturday morning, just after 1 o'clock. Since that time the earth has quivered at intervals, but the jittery citizenship soon became accustomed to the slight tremors.

DAMAGE ELSEWHERE

The tremor did considerable damage at East Helena, a small town five miles west of the capital city. There storefronts fell to the street, and brick-faced walls toppled and building corners crumbled.

The four-story National Biscuit Company warehouse in Helena collapsed and is in total ruin. Down town Helena stores were filled with debris from merchandise knocked from the shelves.

Helena city officials expressed grave fear that many of the buildings weakened by previous shocks this week will collapse if the tremors continue.

The fire department engines rushed through clogged streets as minor fires broke out. They were immediately brought under control.

An East Helena girl was injured and taken to a hospital. She is believed to have suffered a broken leg. The St. Peter's Hospital reported that several earthquake victims, suffering minor injuries, were brought in immediately after the major shock.

For nearly an hour, doctors worked without lights. Relatives of the injured were grouped in the halls of the building. Helena, in southwestern Montana, has a population of about 12,000 persons. It is located in Last Chance Gulch, famous for its gold ore in early Montana history. The city is relatively hilly and a large majority of its buildings are of brick construction. There are innumerable edifices erected in the '80s and '90s.

SHOCKS RECORDED HERE

The seismograph at Gonzales Heights Observatory here recorded a well-defined earthquake of moderate intensity beginning at 8:51 p.m. (E.S.T.), and continuing on the smoked paper for fifteen minutes, according to F. Napier Denison, superintendent. The centre of disturbance was placed at 700 miles east, which would coincide with the recording of the Helena quake.

Tried to Give Her More Than Asked

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (AP).—An Assize Court jury heard evidence in the $5,000 action Miss Leah Elkin brought against Maurice Medline, Toronto lawyer, for breach of contract to marry her, and returned a verdict today awarding Miss Elkin $7,500.

There was a conference in court and then the jury retired again and brought in an award of $5,000, the amount claimed in the action.

USEFULNESS OF DEVICE QUERIED

Arguments Are Advanced in Police Court Against Use Of Governors

In the city police court yesterday Hill's Drive-Yourself Service faced two charges of letting out cars without putting the governors that are placed on them in operation. The company claimed that the governors, if used, are real dangers to operating the cars.

M. B. Jackson, K.C., who appeared as counsel for the company, put forward a plea representing that the attention of the Provincial Police authorities should be called to the situation so described with the idea of revising the regulations.

LIGHT FINES

Magistrate Jay felt that he was obliged, under the regulations, to impose fines, but he made these light with the idea that any representations along the line of amending the rules might be taken up with the authorities where the matter could be considered on its merits. He imposed fines in each case of $5, which Mr. Jackson accepted as fair, under the circumstances.

Constables T. Bainister and George Haywards gave evidence as to having found the cars running at more than the speed required, and had tested out the cars and found they exceeded the speed set out under the regulations when governors were attached.

E. Hill testified that the car which had been let out without the governor being set had just returned from the American side, where no governors were used. He contended that if the governors were set to allow thirty-five miles an hour on a down grade the speed of the car would not be more than that required on the level.

Moreover, he stated, that in a jam the car so set would not be capable of reaching five miles on attempting to start up. There was the danger of "killing the pick up."

ONLY USED HERE

Mr. Hill said that Victoria was the only place that used the governors. They were not used in Vancouver at all.

Mr. Jackson argued that there was nothing in the regulations which required that the governors be set at thirty-five miles, but only that it was required that a governor was carried capable of limiting the speed to thirty-five miles.

C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, offered no argument in the matter. The magistrate felt a fine was required under the regulations.

ASSURANCE GIVEN OF FRENCH HELP

Paragraph 3 of Article XVI of the covenant (quoted above), and, if necessary, will take its share of collective responsibility.

French officials still hoped the reply might induce Britain to withdraw some of its fighting ships from the Mediterranean area, where it is feared by France, the presence of a navy might lead to a clash that would develop into a general war.

ALL DOORS NOT SHUT

ROME, Oct. 18 (AP).—Italy let it be known officially tonight that "all doors are not shut" to peaceful settlement of her differences with Great Britain over the Ethiopian war.

This terse hint, in the form of an official communique, was dropped suddenly into the midst of peace talks which, informed sources said, were setting down to "bed rock" in Africa.

"Conversations in normal diplomatic channels are proceeding between Paris and Rome and Paris and London," said the communique. "There is nothing specific at the moment, but the fact that the conversations are proceeding shows that all doors are not shut."

Simultaneously, a Government spokesman conceded that a long conversation this afternoon between Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador, and Premier Mussolini probably had served to ease the tension.

RUMORED AGREEMENT

(An Exchange telegraph dispatch from Rome said it was rumored the conversations had resulted in an agreement whereby some of Great Britain's additional warships in the Mediterranean would be replaced by French craft in return for reduction of Italian troops in Libya.)

The terse official communique was regarded in Rome generally as an indication the crisis in Anglo-Italian relations has passed.

Premier Mussolini and Premier Laval, of France, are engaged in conversations with Ambassadors of the three vitally interested European powers, Britain, France and Italy.

Only a bare announcement of diplomatic visits was given, but diplomatic circles attribute the greatest importance to them.

Count Charles de Chambrin, the French Ambassador, had a long talk yesterday with Mr. Duce but nothing was said about it.

MACHINE TO ROLL

Despite these evidences of negotiation, Italy's big war machine was about ready tonight to roll south again in its next big push. Correspondents with the army in Northern Ethiopia reported many thousands of laborers and engineers are working desperately to smooth the way for an attack.

GRATIFIED AT REPORTS

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP-AP).—Official observers were gratified tonight at reports from Rome that Italy considered there was still a chance for amicable settlement of differences with Great Britain over the Ethiopian campaign.

Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador, saw Premier Mussolini

THE POLITICAL SCENE

Now that the smoke of battle has lifted, the actual results of the election campaign may be estimated. There are certain features of the situation which can hardly fail to attract attention. The election figures themselves must convince everyone, except perhaps a few extremists and irreconcilables, that the Canadian people as a whole recognize only two worth-while political parties. If the number of votes cast in this election affords any criterion, it seems tolerably certain that there is no future in Canada for third or fourth parties.

Another feature of importance is that the collapse in Canada of the capitalist system is not to take place after all, in spite of the imprecations, threats, and predilections, loudly, arrogantly and menacingly uttered by the mad mullahs of Socialism. The confident prophecy that the profit system is doomed and must disappear, and that production hereafter is to be only for use and not for profit has been falsified. The offers of those omniscient and tremendously efficient persons who announced their willingness to frame up a "planned economy" for the nation have been ignored, and the theorists will now have abundant leisure to polish up their ideal schemes of a planned economy on paper in the privacy of their own homes without the trouble of putting them to the test of actual practice in the country at large.

The election results have demonstrated conclusively that the Canadian people as a whole do not believe for a moment that our social, industrial, and monetary system is doomed to destruction. On the contrary, they believe that it is fundamentally sound, and that "injustices" and "unethical practices" when they occur, are due to individual wrong-doing, to imperfections and defects in the human nature of individuals and not to any inherent weakness in the basis or the superstructure of our social system. In short, revolutionaries and extremists have failed ignominiously in their attempts upon the credulity of the Canadian people as a whole.

Some apprehension is expressed, it is true, as to certain matters of great moment in connection with inter-territorial trade, banking and finance, and also the criminal law. Mr. Mackenzie King, during the election campaign, was none too clear as to his future line of action in respect of the Ottawa Trade Agreements, but it is to be hoped that the responsibilities of office will deter him from any rash or untoward action in that direction. Throughout the recent campaign Mr. King was very insistent in asking for a big majority, big enough to place him in a position to stand up to an adverse Senate. Clearly the country owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Bennett for his care in imparting to the Senate a strong Conservative cast and quality. Mr. King himself will not seriously object to the existence of a Senate that can be depended upon to reject bills of a too radical nature promised in the heat of an election contest, such as, for example, a measure to rescind Section 98 of the Criminal Code. Even in the case of the promised, or threatened, amendment to the Bank of Canada Act, it is quite likely that Mr. King would not be ill pleased to reflect comfortably on the fact that in the Senate he has a dependable ally against the excesses of the extremists of his own party.

AN ECONOMIC PHANTOM

The coexistence of economic theorists is their most antagonizing attribute. It is all the more painful because political economy is an experimental science. In no realm of outlook in this respect is more rigidity of assertion maintained than in the matter of Social Credit. This is all the more remarkable because, for instance, such an economist as Mr. J. M. Keynes confesses to "complete bafflement" in regard to the scheme in Alberta, and such an authority on economic matters as The Investors' Chronicle, of London, says that scheme "has the distinction of not being understood by anybody." Most certainly it is not understood by the people of Alberta, and Premier Aberhart has had to summon advice from the outside to tell him what he wants to do and how it can be done.

What a commentary it is on latter-day human nature that it is so gullible. Social Credit is not founded on facts but on theories, and yet thousands have rallied to its support. It is based on the theory that money has no intrinsic value and can be created by banks and by the state. This is a denial of the fact that money, in the final analysis, is exchangeable goods. In this connection a writer in The Financial Post of Toronto points out that the bank or state notes (currency) may have no intrinsic value on paper, but if they are valid titles to goods and that they are if good notes) they have the intrinsic value of the goods, and it is a mere quibble to say they have no intrinsic value. The same writer says:

"The banks are depositaries of claims upon, or titles to, goods. When money is deposited in a bank it means the actual transfer to the bank of the goods represented by the money, and the depositor is able to go to his grocer, for instance, and get food by transferring his claim to the grocer, or in other words by issuing his cheque to the grocer. The bank while it deals in money, actually deals in goods. Those people who have claims upon goods, which they do not require for the time being, transfer their claims to the bank (deposit). The banks transfer (lend) the goods to others, who use them, but the transfer is made only to those who already have goods in possession which are transferred (pledged) to the banks as security for the goods withdrawn for use. The central fact in all this is that actual goods are in existence for the claims of depositors with the banks, and the banks have claims upon these goods and can take the goods to satisfy the claims of their depositors."

The Financial Post goes on to show that the state or the banks cannot create goods, using the word "create" to mean to bring into being from nothing. In this sense no one can create. Neither the state nor the banks produce goods. Goods and money are in substance the same. Government and bank notes are "claims for goods." The contention of the Social Credit reformers is that they are claims for goods and services. In effect a man's purchasing power depends on the marketable goods he owns, and the state's purchasing power is no greater and no less than that of all its citizens. The state can make no disbursement except from the goods in the possession of its citizens. Social Credit, it is pointed out by The Financial Post, proposes to issue demand claims for goods in existence and also for goods not in existence, to the amount of the appraised value of the natural resources of the state.

This, says the writer, is "sheer folly." He points out that "natural resources, fixed properties and available labor are a potential source of purchasing power, but this power is available only after goods are produced by the application of labor, and the goods must be marketable. There is no magic by which the supply of goods can be increased by issuing claims for them, or by which fixed properties can be transmuted into goods. It is the height of absurdity to issue title to goods non-existent. It is more than that. It is fraud. It would be futile to issue claims unless it was intended the goods should be given for them, and if claims are issued for more goods than exist, when all existing goods are distributed, the balance of the claims for which no goods exist, would be worthless. It is doubtful if the hungry man would be satisfied to fill his stomach with Our Cultural Heritage."

SOCIALISTIC MILITARISM

Differences between those who advocate Socialism, and others who believe in opposing methods for the economic and social welfare of society, are purely political. The character of what is done for the good of society in democratic lands is largely dependent on the vote of the people, and it is as well that it should be. The advocates of Socialism, in some quarters, are however somewhat rampant and lose their perspective. Sir Stafford Cripps, for instance, believes in the eleven-hoof in his advocacy of this political doctrine. He says: "There is only one condition upon which I personally could support armaments and military action. That is, if these were being used by a group of Socialist States to support an international Socialist order against capitalist aggression."

It would appear as if Sir Stafford would not be satisfied with a national, but wants an international dictatorship to forward his Socialistic aims, and a dictatorship backed internationally by the force of arms. What a conception of how the peace of the world could be maintained, or its regimentation, not peace, the aim of Socialism?

One of Canada's great problems, which is constantly barked by politicians, is that of reducing her administrative and executive expenditures to the needs of little more than 10,000,000 people. The country, perhaps more than any country on earth, is over-governed. This fact is patent to the people themselves, but they are supine in their representations on the subject. It is noted outside Canada and is commented on by Mr. T. Kerr Ritchie in a recent issue of The Nineteenth Century. After drawing attention to the over-government that prevails, he says: "Drastic remedies are required if the country is to support its present population in any degree of comfort and make the progress rendered possible by its undoubtedly great resources."

Mr. Winston Churchill says: "I must express my surprise that so wise a ruler as Signor Mussolini should be willing and eager to put his gallant nation into such an uncomfortable military and financial position. To cast an army of nearly 250,000 men on a barren shore 2,000 miles from home against the good will of the whole world . . . and then to embark on what may be a series of campaigns . . . that is, to give hostages to fortune in a manner unparalleled in all history."

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

There's folks 'd hold a stove under the pump and expect to carry away water—Gordon Reid.

Pope may have said something when he said the proper study of mankind is man, but there are occasions when the most interesting study of mankind is politicians. Surveying the result of the late election, the truth is evident that politicians are like ordinary men and different from the brook: Politicians and political parties come and go, but they cannot go on forever. When the franchise, like the British constitution, began to broaden out from precedent to precedent, the immediate result was a great brood of new voters, and the ultimate result was a correspondingly great brood of new politicians. We expect he was a cynical old Tory, who, noting the inevitable declared now we must educate our masters, meaning no doubt in the orthodox political faith, if possible.

So the schoolmaster was sent forth in Great Britain to do his work of educating the common people, and he has crossed over to Canada and is on his job. The party finished work of the schoolmaster was revealed during the late election campaign. The bitter critics of the existing political and economic system declare that one of the curses of Canada is too many politicians. One of the revelations of the late election was a greater number of candidates for the suffrage of the people than ever before in the history of the country. Of the making of politicians, like the making of books, there is no end. There is a saving grace, however, but we sometimes doubt whether the salvation of the people is dependent upon the grace of politicians.

The work of the schoolmaster has not only multiplied the brood of politicians; it has added materially to the number of political parties, and the new political parties have either been formed by schoolmasters or are being "sponsored" (as far from beautiful word) by inspired pedagogues, with the assistance of divines undoubtedly inspired by that inner voice which is sometimes called psychological. A short survey of the political history of Canada discloses the fact that new political parties are of few days. They come up like a flower in the night, but in the sunlight of a day of experience they wither and decay, and the place which knew them for a brief period knows them no more.

In the first youth of the Dominion of Canada the political structure was without form and void. Chaos gradually yielded place to order and out of the mists appeared two political parties, one of moderate and reasonable views which called itself a Conservative Party, and the other of advanced views which called itself a Reform or a Liberal Party. But even in those days there was a saving or irreconcilable political element in Parliament which could think of no suitable name and called itself the Third Party. For years the late Hon. Peter Mitchell was the sole elected member and leader of the Third Party.

After the untimely death of the Third Party there was a Nationalist Party of Quebec, whose leader was Mr. Henri Bourassa, a journalist of considerable repute and an orator of some power. The member for the constituency of Labelle, although a fervid Frenchman of Liberal views could not altogether reconcile political Liberalism with the principles professed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and with the National Party he passed out of the political picture a few days ago when defeated in the election by a supporter of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King.

The next new political party to be born was that of the United Farmers of Ontario. The object of the United Farmers was to accomplish the death of all common politicians and establish a government by honest men for men who had been afflicted by the dishonesty of politicians. The administration of Hon. R. L. Drury lived for a year or two and was buried in a shroud embroidered with a record of more individual and joint scandals than any other government in the history of Canada. The United Farmers of Ontario, however, did not die without issue. Mrs. Agnes MacPhail was in the new House of Commons, as a result, in a strictly political sense, of the late Hon. R. L. Drury.

The most reputable Third Party of the whole lot of failures and failures was that of the United Farmers of Alberta. It has passed into oblivion, strangled by the fruits of the seed it sowed. The leader of the dead party promised the people of the province an inheritance somewhere in the neighborhood of the economic Desolate Mountains. One of the schoolmasters came along in the guise of a prophet and promised the Albertans that he would lead them immediately into the never, never land of Utopia. If the third parties never were given a chance to demonstrate their qualities and the soundness of their theories, they did flourish for a season, but with the acceptance of power they went forth to their doom.

Feels Better Now
 Bill Findlay, Junior Chamber of Commerce secretary, was caught napping in the Federal election. He made a bet with Tom Merriman, Times columnist, that Bennett would not be elected to the election. He was already to collect when Tom arrived in the office on Tuesday. It was a twenty-one bet, with Bill on the money. Tom answered, but Bill has not figured it out yet. However, Tom did not hold him to the bet. It is reported that he took instead a good Liberal cigar from several that Bill had collected during the election campaign.—P.C.R.

Less Tax Appeal
 Between elections it is nice to remember that British Columbia industries have produced in excess of $5,000,000,000 in less than one year through work and private endeavor. Governments in the same time produced $1,000,000,000 in tax bills to run 10 per cent of the people's business. It is more government or more business that will be the need of this province in the next century?—S.G.

Shifting Responsibility
 The glittering Vancouver Sun has produced a rather novel excuse for the failure of British Columbia Liberals to obtain more seats in the Federal election. It is all the fault of Mr. Paul, the "Sun" declares. People don't like him in the Provincial field, so they voted against Federal candidates. The obvious result of Mr. Paul's would naturally be the poor showing Federal Liberals have made in the election.

Champions Are Ready
 The clouds of doubt have passed over the local basketball horizon and the general public seems satisfied that there is a clear road ahead of Victoria's great game machine, holders of the Canadian championship. The other evening the boys who worked under the colors of the Blue Ribbons last season, which they finished off by capturing their second national crown in three years, met and took over the name of Victoria Dominions. In the books the game of dominions is the oldest game of skill known in the world, so let's hope that these basketball stars put their ingenuity together and bring another Dominion title to Victoria and thus end their "trip" to the Olympic Games. Give your best white on the floor and co-operate with your new manager, Dave Nicol, and success will come with you, boys.—J.D.

Gets His Chance
 Joe Di-Maggio—San Francisco outfielder, voted the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League this year, will go to the New York Yankees training camp next Spring for a tryout with the major league ball nine. Di-Maggio is another of the "sand lot" ball players who has made good, and is now going to get his real chance. "Desha" Jones, as he is known in Coast ball circles, attracted early attention because of his hitting ability and joined the Seals when he was nineteen. He floundered about the players through out the game and made the referee has proved beyond a doubt that he has the "stuff" that makes ball players. He finished second in the Coast League batting this season. When Di-Maggio goes up to the majors he will be following in the steps of Frank Demaree, of the Chicago Cubs, National League pennant winners, who won the Pacific Coast League's most valuable player award in 1934.—S.T.

Appreciation
 Sir—May I through the medium of your newspaper extend my sincere thanks to all the citizens of Victoria who endorsed my candidature once again by their votes last Monday.

It is my intention to serve all the citizens of Victoria constituency to the best of my ability as I have endeavored to do in past years.

I wish particularly to express my gratitude to The Daily Colonist, the editorial staff and all associates for their courtesy, valuable support and help during the campaign, all of which is deeply appreciated by me.

STOPS THE GAME
 SIDNEY, N.E.W.—A large white crowd that took exception to footballers invading its domain forced "time out" to be called while it was removed from the field. It floundered about the players through out the game and made the referee the object of its special attentions.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY
 (From The Daily British Colonist of October 19, 1885.)

"The road to Gordon Head has been considerably improved by the Government, the main road filled in and portions of it ballasted. The descent to the sea has been widened and graded, and a considerable amount of clearing has been made during the past season, and next year it will be necessary to continue the road along the coast to reach the various ranches which it encompasses. Gordon Head will be one of the most attractive drives from the city—the scenery along the coast—some of the charming description and of a more rugged character than by the other drives."

A little more of two years was crossing Port Street yesterday, when a street car coming at a rapid pace struck the child with the off-side wheel and knocked it down. The on-lookers appeared for an instant as though the child had been run over, but as he lay there, a boy apparently nine years of age, in whose charge it was and who had preceded it to the sidewalk, was found to be unhurt. It is to be hoped that the driver of the car will let the innocent serve as a warning to him against such reckless driving.

 No letter to the Editor will be inserted except over the proper signature and address of the writer. This rule admits of no exception. No letter should exceed 300 words in length.

TRAFFIC CONTROL

Sir—The traffic control lights installed on Douglas Street have now been served without doubt to be a great service and an efficient means of controlling traffic for the safety of pedestrians. Additional traffic control lights are now required at the intersections of Government and Johnson Streets, also Yates and Blanshard Streets.

There is at times a considerable stream of automobile traffic on Johnson Street from Esquimalt, especially on Saturday evenings, crossing Government Street, thus creating a traffic control light at this intersection.

There are also a considerable number of pedestrians, afternoons and evenings week days, attending motion picture shows, at the intersection of Yates and Blanshard Streets. A traffic control light is required at this intersection.

I beg also to suggest that the traffic control lights on Douglas Street be turned on every Sunday evening between the hours of 7 and 9 for the benefit of churchgoing people.

F. W. BRANDER,

THE GENERAL ELECTION

Sir—Doubtless R. B. Bennett, a statesman, was beaten by Mackenzie King, a politician. The latter gentleman, however, what interests are other people's, and acted accordingly.

Mr. R. B. Bennett plunged into things that were true, but forgot that truth is a austere, unpleasant, uncomfortable and an extremely cold bedfellow. Truth is, of course, beautiful in itself; that is why that ethical fundamental of Christian character is truth; that is why that bottommost quality (veracity) is rarely found in the mass mind. Minds (politically) in the concrete will read and listen to the thoughts of others, but seldom are capable of reading through them.

It seems to me that, in spite of Mr. Mackenzie King's majority, one barely felt that he had a mighty wave behind him, but rather he knew how to create a superficial surge beneath the voting populace.

For to point to Mr. Bennett as a possible war bogey was a clever manoeuvre, the result of which would have been something like a leech on the Quebec mind. For it is pretty well known that Quebec people are lovers of peace—erring, of course, in so far that they fail to recognize a truce, that a pacifist is a no better man than a militarist, unless he is prepared to die for peace.

As an illustration, we place terrific stress on ability, forgetting that ability is a non-essential and is found as often in graft, subterfuge and perjury, as it is in better ways and things.

I need hardly say that subterfuge is not a cardinal virtue, and with a surety will conclude that party patronage can, in the long run, prove a greater menace to the country than a battalion amok with machine guns.

SUNRISE AND SUNSET

Civic Opera's First Production Received With Great Acclaim

Wagner's "Lohengrin" Given Vociferous Reception by Audience That Fills Royal Victoria Theatre—Repetition Tonight

THE lights blazed out on the front of the Royal Victoria Theatre last evening to herald the opening night of one of the most ambitious and courageous enterprises in the way of amateur entertainment ever attempted in the city, namely, the Victoria Civic Opera Society's production of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Even by the professional companies, Wagnerian opera is always considered to present the greatest difficulties, and many of the big professional singers quail at the mere thought of assuming any of these great roles. Therefore, Victorians who had heard Wagner sung by any of the famous metropolitan companies were frankly a little bit startled when the announcement was made at the close of last season that "Lohengrin" was to be presented locally by amateurs. But last night's performance is its own justification. In saying this one is considering it purely as an amateur entertainment.

The whole-hearted enthusiasm of the audience was undeniable testimony of the public's appreciation. Such spontaneous applause as burst from all sections of the house at the end of the first act and consistently followed every drop of the curtain throughout the evening was no perfunctory tribute to something that was merely a "worthy attempt," but the expression of real enjoyment.

The Victoria Civic Opera Company was organized with the idea of building up a civic opera with its singers, chorus, corps de ballet and an orchestra of locally-trained musicians. Victoria business and professional men are behind the movement, which in Basil Horstfall has a highly qualified, experienced and competent conductor, who is more likely to establish the thing on a successful basis than anyone who has attempted anything of the kind hitherto.

In the productions which he brought out last year, Mr. Horstfall showed the results of his fine experience in this kind of work. And to an even greater degree this was true last night, for not only is the opera far more difficult than any given last season, but it moved with commendable smoothness. With characteristic authority and skill he brought a fine measure of unity and co-ordination into the performance. The orchestral reading was good, and there was surprising vitality and sustained interest throughout.

EXCELLENTLY PRESENTED. In respect of staging, costuming, make-up and other detail, the work also was most excellently presented. The mounting was simple, but entirely adequate, and without any of the ludicrousness that might have arisen had anything more elaborate been undertaken. After all, the music and the drama are the essential things in Wagnerian opera.

The same comment applies to the costuming. Imported specially for the occasion, the costumes were both appropriate and effective. In the case of the principals and chief chorists being really beautiful. On the whole, the make-up was excellent, but some improvement could be effected in this with a little more study and practice.

BASED ON LEGEND

Wagner, above all others, scaled the heights in poetical and musical workmanship in his operas. "Lohengrin," like "Parsifal," is based on legend of the Holy Grail. It is the last of his works to which Wagner applied the term "romantic opera," and while it is profound, rich in symbolism, and in the dramatic, artistic and creative elements that are so closely blended in all the master's works, it is in more popular form, nearer the recognized operatic conventions than some of his later works, and, therefore, is perhaps more suited to an audience untrained to the complexities of his later works.

THE PRINCIPALS

All the principals seemed duly impressed with the profound sense of the drama, and sang and acted with dignity and sincerity of intention. Carl Horthy, a native son of Victoria, who is at present on holiday from his studies in Europe, took the title role of "Lohengrin," the knight of the Holy Grail. In shining silver armor as called for in the text, fulfilling Elia's dream of something more glorious than she had ever seen, "leaning on his award and with a golden horn at his belt," he made his appearance in a boat drawn by a swan with a chain of gold about its neck. Mr. Horthy was a truly magnificent and impressive figure, with becoming dignity and gentleness of expression and the requisite stature. His voice technically was excellent, and in several of the fine arias showed great capacities, vocally, although these were not at all times supported to the extent they should have been by dramatic expression.

T. Harry Johns was Henry I, King of Germany, a role which he very adequately portrayed, both in voice and manner, which were at all times highly effective dramatically, conveying a sense of the nobility and justness of the monarch.

As Telramund, a noble of Brabant, Fraser Lister deserves very high praise. His singing and acting alike were eloquent, and more than any others in the cast he brings force and passion to the interpretation. There is a difference, however, between the mood of Wagner and Italian opera, and the distinction should be carefully studied. Alva Wetherell's Royal Herald score for about half the number of instruments called for in the original Wagner score, was enthusiastically applauded as he took his place at the conductor's desk.

Under his experienced guidance the orchestra played well, as the instant silence commanded by the lovely overture music convincingly testified. Numerous other elements went to the success of this major effort of Victoria's amateur opera performers.

APPRECIATION IS EXPRESSED

Many Patients Write to Hospital Board—Last Month Shows Increase

A marked increase in the number of patients registered at the Royal Jubilee Hospital during the month of September was reported to the board of directors at their monthly meeting last night.

The number of hospital days amounted to 7,165, an increase of 807 days over the figure for the corresponding month of last year. The average number of patients per day totaled 239, or an increase of twenty-seven over the average for September, 1934.

Numerous letters were received by the board of directors from patients who expressed their appreciation and gratitude for the kindness of the nurses and those in charge, and for the capable and efficient manner in which they had carried out their multitudinous duties.

The hospital cost per day amounted to $2.92, including laboratory and X-ray treatment, $3.23.

Medical Men Of Note Are Coming Here

Two noted medical men will be honored guests at the Hospitals Association of British Columbia meeting to be held here in the Royal Jubilee Hospital on November 13.

They are Dr. Harvey Agnew and Dr. Malcolm McEachern, who will discuss subjects of great importance and interest to the members of the medical profession. Further details of the meeting will be announced later.

SUGGEST ENDING HYDRO CONTRACTS

Ontario Power Commission Advises Proclamation of Legislation Terminating Agreements

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission today recommended to the Ontario government that the Power Commission Act, 1923, providing for cancellation of the Quebec power contracts, be proclaimed immediately.

A special meeting of Cabinet council has been called for Monday or Tuesday to deal with the recommendations. T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the commission, after a meeting with Commissioners Atorney-General Reebuck and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, said the commission unanimously passed its recommendation.

Premier Hepburn has said that the legislation, cancelling contracts between Ontario and MacLaren-Quebec, Gaffney, Beaudry and Ontario Valley Companies would be proclaimed in due time.

DEATH OF SEATTLE BANKER MYSTERIOUS

SEATTLE, Oct. 18 (AP)—The body of a man found in Lake Union on Thursday was identified tonight as that of W. W. West, secretary of the Seattle Clearing House Association and department manager of the First National Bank. West disappeared on October 3.

Chief Deputy Coroner Earl Navin said that the body was badly bruised on one side, and that an autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death.

DONATIONS ARE ACKNOWLEDGED

Jubilee Hospital Board Receives Support From Many Loyal Friends

The board of directors of the Royal Jubilee Hospital last night expressed its heartfelt appreciation for the many kindnesses shown by friends of the hospital and for generous donations received.

A gift of $100 from the Women's Auxiliary for linens was gratefully acknowledged, as also was the gift from the same organization of instrument sterilizers for the maternity ward.

The board also extended its thanks and appreciation to another friend of the hospital, who throughout the summer months sent a profusion of blooms to the hospital each week.

A generous donor sent a very fine radio for the annex ward, which has pleased the aged patients there. The patients, in a letter to the board, expressed their deepest gratitude for the thoughtfulness of the donor.

The board sent to Rev. S. Ryall, of St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, letters of thanks for donations of fruit and vegetables from his parish.

caused by the character of the mountains. Military operations are being carried on in a region where within distances of twenty miles the troops have to pass in quick succession from altitudes of 4,800 feet to 2,000 and higher. The distress is intensified by the rudimentary roads hurriedly constructed by the Italian engineers.

These roads are for the most part mere tracks filled with layers of loose stones. Sawing mountain torrents cut across the roads which make hairpin turns around precipices, where one false step would mean death.

MACHINE GUN ATTACK

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press) ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 18.—Ethiopia's Government claimed tonight that a fleet of low-flying Italian airplanes had raked the strategic Northern village of Makale with machine guns.

For a more expensive bomb, the Government said, the Fascist flyers sprayed the natives with bullets. Casualties were not announced. (An Exchange Telegraph dispatch said sixty were killed at Makale by both machine guns and bombs.)

Makale is sixty miles southeast of Addis Ababa, which was taken by Italian armies in their first big push in the North.

FORMING NEW STAFF

Ras Seyoum, the Ethiopian commander in the North, was said officially to be forming a new general staff in preparation for stiffer resistance. (Delayed dispatches from Asmara, Eritrea, stated the first real opposition to the Italian advance from the North was believed developing around Makale, with Ras Seyoum and two other generals concentrating fighters in that sector.)

Ethiopian sources said Italians along the Tigre front were digging trenches and constructing barbed wire defenses, fearing an assault by the hordes of Ras Seyoum.

DANGEROUS "DUDS"

The Government reported casualties from "dud" air bombs from another district, which was not named. Curious natives who had never seen such things picked up two of the bombs and banged them on a rock. They exploded, blowing several persons to pieces.

The Italian army in the South, it was reported, has not moved from its base along the Somali frontier, and Ethiopian regulars have not been seen anywhere by the invaders.

It was believed certain that the warriors of Haile Selassie were holding well-defended positions.

WILL CELEBRATE NAVAL VICTORY

Plans Completed for Dinner Tonight Honor of Historic Battle of Trafalgar

Plans for the dinner to be held tonight at 7 o'clock, in the Hudson's Bay Company dining-room, in celebration of the one hundred and thirtieth anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar, were completed last night at a meeting of the Naval Veterans, Victoria branch.

Among the honored guests who have been invited are Mayor David Leeming, Commander G. C. Jones, Brigadier D. J. MacDonald, General Sir Percy Lake, Rev. Alan Gardner, Rev. Father A. B. Wood, and Robert Macnicol, secretary of the Provincial Command, Canadian Legion.

Besides a large number of naval and ex-naval men of Victoria, who will be present tonight, many are expected from Vancouver, New Westminster, Seattle, Tacoma, Nanaimo and Cumberland.

An orchestra and four vocal artists will provide the entertainment. President W. H. Dalloway will preside. Joseph Wittcomb is chairman of the dinner committee, which comprises E. S. Mitchell, Joseph Tharrett, H. Brown, James Addison, H. Dawe, Alan Ford, Captain W. J. C. Johnstone and Mr. Dalloway.

Henderson's Condition Is Still Grave

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—The condition of Arthur Henderson, veteran political figure of Great Britain and president of the defunct World Disarmament Conference, was serious tonight as the labor leader attempted to rally from an operation. He underwent the operation after suffering from jaundice, which physicians said was caused by gallstones.

The latest bulletin on his illness was issued today, and described his condition as "grave."

Reports of the membership campaign will also be read. Sixty years ago the Y.M.C.A. was established here, said E. Woodson, who will deal with its history from 1875 to 1900. E. W. Whittington and other speakers will tell of its progress between 1900 and 1935. Mayor David Leeming will represent the city.

PARDON GRANTED ESCAPED CONVICT

His wife and six children are awaiting him at Lewiston.

Frank Perle, Jr., of Chicago, son of the slain man, was the only one who protested the clemency in two hearings before the pardons board.

The governor commented that McClellan's being tried jointly with three other defendants probably caused his conviction.

Expressing sympathy for the man, the board announced "It is clear McClellan should not have suffered the same penalty as did Evan Harris, the latter fired one of the shots which killed Perle."

McClellan, a trusty after serving two years of his term, escaped one night by walking from the cell block just as the prisoners were being checked in, and by darting through the prison yard and scaling the wall.

He steadily denied any participation in the hold-up murder.

Figures for Six Months Show Increase of Twenty-Five Millions

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (AP).—Canada's export trade in the first six months of the current fiscal year showed a jump of $26,054,000 over the corresponding six months of the previous fiscal year, the Bureau of Statistics reported today. The bureau said also three of Canada's five best customers were Empire countries.

DUKE'S BRIDE BUYS BRITISH

Scotland's Daughter Will Select Wedding Gown in Abbey's Light

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP).—Lady Alice Scott has decided to have British-made dresses for herself and her bridesmaids when she marries the Duke of Gloucester Nov. 6.

Details of the gowns are not yet settled as there are many points to consider when the setting is to be ancient Westminster Abbey. Lady Alice has returned from Scotland and will spend several days in London to attend to the business of trousseau buying and make her final choice from several designs submitted to her for the wedding gowns.

TESTING EFFECTS
Various materials will be taken to the Abbey, so that the lighting effects on satins of different shades and choose the one that harmonizes best with the mellowed stone walls and sombre light.

There will probably be eight bridesmaids, including Princess Elizabeth; Princess Margaret Rose, whose first appearance this will be in a bridal procession; the Earl and Countess of Darnley's daughters, Lady Elizabeth and Lady Caroline Scott, nieces of the bride; and the schoolgirl daughters of Lord and Lady Francis Scott, cousins of the bride.

Bandit Takes $3,500 From Two Women

SEATTLE, Oct. 18 (AP).—A masked bandit held up the payroll office of the Black Manufacturing Company late today, escaping with approximately $3,500 in cash, plant officials said. The robbery came shortly before the weekly pay-off of employees, and as soon as possible to procure a group hearing aid which will enable the club to have lectures and entertainments which can be enjoyed by all the members.

DOING GOOD WORK
All over the United States and Canada these clubs are being formed and the good they do is incalculable. There is a large percentage of deafened people in Victoria and there are many who feel that thereby they are ostracized. Those who suffer from this form of disability in hearing have the greatest difficulty in convincing others that their disability is not half so serious when there is a definite form of understanding between all concerned. Otherwise they become the butt of ridicule and unkindly accused of stupidity. To combat these conditions, these clubs are being started, and the people affected have realized that by uniting they can insist on their rights.

Hard of Hearing Club To Be Organized Here

Meeting Will Be Held on Wednesday to Discuss Plans for Helping Deafened Persons—Groups Do Good Work Elsewhere

Through the interest and efforts of Miss Kate Gaudin and a number of other Victorians, a club for the hard of hearing is to be organized at a meeting to be held at Miss Gaudin's apartment, 1260 Fort Street, on Wednesday evening, October 23, at 8 o'clock. This club will form a branch of the American Society for the Hard of Hearing, which has met with such gratifying results both in Canada and in the United States. It is being organized as a help to the deaf and partially deaf people in Victoria, so that those affected in this way may unite in an effort to help one another and bring about a happier outlook on life.

The leagues have various aims and ambitions which they work constantly to realize. The Victoria club is being organized with the idea, first, to promote the welfare of the deafened; secondly, to provide facilities for lip-reading practice, for social entertainments to bring members together and to help and encourage members to form new friendships; etc., thirdly, to give unbiased advice in regard to hearing aids and as soon as possible to procure a group hearing aid which will enable the club to have lectures and entertainments which can be enjoyed by all the members.

DOING GOOD WORK
All over the United States and Canada these clubs are being formed and the good they do is incalculable. There is a large percentage of deafened people in Victoria and there are many who feel that thereby they are ostracized. Those who suffer from this form of disability in hearing have the greatest difficulty in convincing others that their disability is not half so serious when there is a definite form of understanding between all concerned. Otherwise they become the butt of ridicule and unkindly accused of stupidity. To combat these conditions, these clubs are being started, and the people affected have realized that by uniting they can insist on their rights.

HELP IS NEEDED
From a humanitarian point of view these clubs are welcomed by many friends of the deaf who thereby learn just how to make life more livable for those they love and admire. Many of the associate members are not deafened at all, but have taken it up to assist in this great work. No one knows when he or she hears so well may become deaf. It is hoped that a club-room, open daily, will be made possible; a monthly publication in the interests of the deaf, will be available and the social side of life, including luncheons, dinner and card parties will be organically included.

A cordial invitation has been extended to all interested in the movement to attend the meeting next Wednesday.

Charge Dismissed—In the Spanish police court yesterday, Magistrate George Jay dismissed the charge against Kurt Henschel of assaulting Jack Gale and causing him actual bodily harm.

Commercial Travelers—Victoria Council No. 484, United Commercial Travelers of America, will hold a business session tonight at 7:45 o'clock, in the K. of C. Hall, Government Street. At 9:30 o'clock Herbert J. Pendray will give an address on his recent trip to the Orient, which will be accompanied by beautiful colored slides. All members of the council are urged to attend.

To Speak Sunday—Bishop H. E. Sexton will hold a service on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at All Saints' Church, Shawanigan Lake. His address will be to the Mothers' Union.

FAMOUS RAIDER SEES OLD FOES
German "Sea Devil" Is Noted for Chivalry in War Exploits

LONDON (AP).—Count Felix von Luckner, whose exploits as commander of the German raider Seeadler earned him the title of "Sea Devil," visited England recently with Countess von Luckner.

During his stay in London the Count met British naval officers, including Sir Reginald Hall, who as chief of the British Naval Intelligence Department during the war years, endeavored to capture the "Sea Devil" while he was raiding British shipping.

REAL GOOD FUN
Count von Luckner, asked how he managed to evade capture for so long during the war, said: "You see, I was sailing in British, Scandinavian and every other kind of ship. I know what a reputation the British have for chivalry, so I had my sixteen-year-old boy on board a Norwegian ship dressed as my wife. Then I had a gramophone playing 'Tipperary.' It was really good fun. But never during all my raids did I take a single human life."

The Count began his adventures early, for he ran away to Australia when he was thirteen. There he joined the Salvation Army. In 1903 when he visited England, he was working as an ordinary sailor on a boat which took a cargo of clay to Plymouth; fifteen years later he was notorious in this country, for between the Spring and Autumn of 1917 he sank ships worth $40,000,000. He captured seventeen ships within a few weeks and sank them, but made sure that the crews were safe first.

"You see," he explained, "I have always regarded myself as a citizen of the sea, and when I have come across an enemy ship, those manning her, too, were citizens of the sea."

Representatives of the three Methodist bodies in the United States that are contemplating union joined in an ordination service recently in an American city. This was commented upon as a happy augury of the merging of the denominations.

CHAIN LETTER PEACE
BRISBANE, Australia.—Former Angac soldiers have adopted the chain letter plan in the cause of peace. The letters urge the avoidance of war and are forwarded to return soldier associations throughout the world. The chain is hoped to finally encircle the earth.

OIL PROSPECTING
PORT MORESBY, New Guinea.—Australian oil promoters contemplate the expenditure of large sums of money in oil prospecting in this territory. Oil is believed to exist in large quantities. Satisfactory legislation to protect the investment is being sought from the Australian Government.

MELBOURNE—Australia soon will have established air lines between principal cities by the purchasing of twelve passenger planes by a large Australian always service. Service between Sidney and Melbourne will be instituted at once. It will also connect up with the present service between Melbourne and Tasmania.

Report of Dominion W.A. Read at Board Meeting

Lady Lake and Mrs. Wilfrid Hartley Tell of Interesting Sessions at Ottawa—Next Annual Meeting to Be Held in Victoria

Interesting and informing reports of the annual meeting of the Dominion board held in Ottawa, October 1 to 5, were given yesterday at the meeting of Columbia W.A. in the Memorial Hall, by the diocesan president, Lady Lake, and Mrs. Wilfrid Hartley, one of the delegates to the meeting.

The diocesan president dealt chiefly with the business reports, and plans formulated by the board for the coming year, at the same time giving a wonderful insight into the progress made during the past year in increase in membership and contributions.

YEAR OF EDUCATION
The intention expressed by the representative meeting, to make 1936 a year of education in every diocese, was heartily endorsed, and the value of the Living Message as a medium for conveying such education was emphasized, with the intention of having every W.A. member a subscriber to this instructive magazine.

The wide scope of the work of the diocesan department was a revelation to many who attended the Dominion annual meeting, Lady Lake said, and tribute was paid to the splendid system carried out by Mrs. F. J. Brimer, during her years in the office of diocesan secretary, by means of which the work has been greatly extended, at the same time a notable saving in funds has been effected.

NEXT MEETING HERE
The Dominion board accepted the invitation to hold the 1936 annual meeting in Victoria, as guests of Columbia W.A., the executive being invited by the board of New Westminster. It is a great honor for Victoria to look forward to greeting the newly-elected president, Mrs. Wodehouse, on her first annual meeting as Dominion president; she has held the office of recording secretary for seven years. At the close of her report, Mrs. A. Bengough, third vice-president, who took the chair during the report, thanked Lady Lake for the report, thanked Lady Lake for the report, thanked Lady Lake for the report.

The conferences were valuable and impressive, and had served a wonderful purpose in bringing together members of all churches, choirs and clergy, to illustrate the value of work for missions.

A specially encouraging feature of the meeting was the attendance of such a large proportion of the younger women, officers on various boards, and delegates to the gathering. Mrs. Hartley was thanked and complimented on her fine report.

BISHOP WELCOMED
A warm greeting was extended to the Bishop-Coadjutor and Mrs. Eton by the meeting, at the afternoon session, and both were interested in hearing of the reports of the Dominion annual meeting. A welcome was expressed to Miss M. Barrie, of the Kootenay Diocesan Board, who is now taking a special course in St. Christopher's College, Vancouver Street.

At the morning session the Dean gave a devotional address, the subject being "St. Luke, Evangelist, Loyal Disciple and Friend." Mrs. H. J. Hinton, president of Christ Church senior branch, expressed a warm welcome to the afternoon session, and evening branches acting as

Engagement Is Announced St. Mary's Card Party Is Success

MISS MAXINE GREENE

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Green, 160 Beechwood Avenue, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Maxine, to Mr. Hubert Albert Lock, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Lock, 1633 Fort Street. The wedding will take place quietly in mid-November.

C.G.I.T. NOTES

FIRST UNITED

The first meeting of the Canadian Girls in Training Department of First United Church took the form of a fellowship evening when the initiation ceremony took place. Two new leaders, Mrs. E. Horton and Miss Alice Skelton, were introduced. Department officers elected were: President, Freda Nelson; secretary, Olive French; reporter, Pearl Graham. There are seventy-four girls in this department. This year the girls are enjoying four interest groups in first aid, charm, gymnastics and dramatics. In November the girls will present a mission play. Last week the meeting took the form of a social evening.

ST. AIDAN'S

Under the leadership of Miss Barbara Dawson, the girls of St. Aidan's have elected the following officers: President, Joan Rooney; vice-president, Lillian Williams; secretary, Alvin Griffiths; and treasurer and counsellor, Jean Dawson. At present, an interesting competition in doll-dressing is being held.

JAMES RAY UNITED

Under the direction of Miss Morris, assisted by Miss Margaret Davey and Miss Margaret Fleming, the C.G.I.T. group of James Ray United Church elected their department officers as follows: President, Betty Southern; vice-president, Doreen Watson; secretary, Betty Dauphin; treasurer, Doris Beck. Plans are being made for the initiation ceremony and a halloween party.

METROPOLITAN UNITED

The Canadian Girls in Training of Metropolitan Church have completed the first month of their Fall programme. The first meeting took the form of a corn supper, which proved a great fun. The second meeting was devoted to the election of officers, election of officers for both the department and separate

Clubs-Societies

Cheminus W.B.A.

The regular meeting of the Cheminus W.B.A., Review No. 19, was held in the recreation hall, with the president in the chair. Following the regular business an interesting social hour was held. Plans are being made for the forty-third birthday celebration, which will be held on November 13, and will be definitely decided, in addition to the apron stall, a novelty stall, tea and cake guessing contest, and candy and home baking stalls will also be added. Birthday greetings were extended to the members whose birthdays were in October, including the president whose birthday, together with that of the association, was celebrated after the meeting. Following the refreshments, games were played under the convener'ship of Miss E. Payne.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge

The regular social meeting of Colfax Rebekah Lodge will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Douglas Street. After a short business meeting a halloween party will be held. There will be games and contests, followed by refreshments. No charge will be made. The Lucky 13 Sewing Club will hold a progressive partner whist and pivot bridge party, on Tuesday, October 22, at 8 p.m. in the lodge hall, the proceeds going to buy winter clothing for children of needy members. Bridge players are asked to bring their own cards and score pads. Reservation of tables for the party may be made by telephoning Miss A. Brown, E 0269, and for whist, Mrs. M. Somerville, G 7495. All friends and members of the subordinate lodge are cordially invited to assist this endeavor.

James Ray W.M.S.

The James Ray W.M.S. held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. F. Schroeder, Luskton Street. The autumn praise and thanksgiving service was led by Mrs. D. Hamilton. Many Christmas gifts were donated by the members for the Presbyterian supplies from whence they are distributed to the lonely and isolated places of British Columbia. Much hospital and home visiting was reported. A chapter from the study book, "Builders of India," on the life and work of Pandita Ramabai, was given by Mrs. Pratt, to whom a vote of thanks

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SOUTH SAANICH
The South Saanich Institute held its monthly meeting at the Temperance Hall, East Saanich Road, on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Alex Sutherland was in the chair. A letter of thanks was read from the Solarium X-ray fund for the donation received from the institute; also a letter from Miss K. Oldfield, asking the members to join the public speaking class. Mrs. E. T. Lawrie read an interesting report on the Vancouver Island Board convention, held in Victoria. Mrs. H. Lawrie also gave a short address to the members on the convalescence. Arrangements were made to hold a bridge and five hundred card party on Saturday, November 2, at the hall, and an old-time dance will be held on November 8. Plans were made to hold a "wool bee" on October 30 at the Temperance Hall.

Victoria West L.A.

The ladies of Victoria West United Church will hold their annual sale of work in the social hall on Wednesday, November 23. Tea and supper will be served.

Equimault League

The Equimault Subdivision of the Canadian Women's League will hold a card party on October 25 in the church hall, Equimault Road. Five hundred will be played and scrip prizes given.

Quadrant

The regular meeting of the Quadrant P.T.A. will be held on Monday at 8 p.m. in the school annex.

A most successful card party was held last evening at St. Mary's Hall by St. Mary's Women's Guild. The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. H. A. Youdall, and the supper arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Philip, Mrs. Herbert Armstrong and Mrs. H. V. Mills. The hall had been prettily decorated with autumn flowers for the occasion, bowls of chrysanthemums and Michaelmas daisies being arranged across the front of the platform and about the room.

A number of hostesses arranged tables in their own homes, among these being Mrs. Walter Lunney, Mrs. F. P. Forbes, Mrs. Fessenden, Mrs. T. P. Waters, Mrs. W. E. Foxwell, Miss A. B. Cooke, Mrs. G. P. Player, Mrs. Leckie-Ewing and Mrs. Hawkins.

McMillan-Piccoli

Autumn flowers and greenery were arranged in St. Alban's Church for the wedding of Angelina, second daughter of Mr. G. Piccoli and the late Mrs. Piccoli, of Powell River, and Mr. James G. McMillan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan, 1489 Myrtle Street, which was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large congregation. Rev. F. W. Weaver officiated and the wedding marches were played by the organist.

The bride was given away by Mr. H. Thomas, an old family friend, and she wore a pretty frock of blue lace and a matching hat, and carried a bouquet of two shades of pink. The bridesmaid was Miss Irene Holmes in a pale green frock and bonnet, who carried a sheaf of chrysanthemums in blend of yellow, white and white carnations, and attending her was her sister, Mrs. E. R. Willey, who was dressed in brown, with a corsage bouquet of pink roses and carnations. Mr. Bert Landdell supported his brother.

A small reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, and later Mr. and Mrs. Landdell left for Seattle, the bride donning for the journey a black overcoat with a silver collar. On their return, they will live at 922 Melchroin Street.

Among the wedding gifts were a standard lamp from the Blue Line for which the groom is a driver; a reversible wool blanket from the bride's former fellow employees at the Hudson's Bay Company; and a smoker's stand from the basketball team of which the groom is manager.

Sidney
The North Saanich Welfare Club, Sidney, is starting its winter season in rooms at "Shoreacres," which are available through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Morrey. This club has been holding regular meetings during the summer and working on articles for distribution. During September eight families were assisted, ninety garments being given out. To continue its work the society requests the donation of used clothing. Its special need at present is for children's underwear. Meetings are held each fortnight at "Shoreacres." Some of the club activities are remodeling used clothing; mending garments and quilt making.

League of Nations Has Not Failed Says Speaker

Dr. Henrietta Anderson, Addressing Y.W.C.A. Current Events Group, Testifies to Achievements Effected in Fifteen Years

"When Reuters—the least sentimental, the most cold-blooded of the news agencies, publishes the fact that strangers and visitors in Geneva always ask to see where Anthony Eden sits, it is not because of Anthony Eden that they are interested, but because it is generally recognized that if salvation comes through the League it must also be through Britain, who has shown a more honest all-around desire to meet the situation than anyone else," said Dr. Henrietta Anderson, of the Provincial Normal School staff, Mount Toluine, in addressing the Y.W.C.A. 'Current Events' group at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

Introduced by Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, Dr. Anderson speaking to the subject: "The League of Nations, Has not Failed?" promptly stated her own view in a positive "no!" There was much yet to be done, but the League, nevertheless, had accomplished much during its fifteen years' existence.

SOME ACCOMPLISHMENTS

In her summary of the League achievements, she cited its partial success in reducing armaments; in limiting the drawing up of secret international treaties and alliances; in settling disputes by arbitration; in following the agreement not to go to war unless some attempt at settlement had first been made by an impartial tribunal, and fighting disease and social scourges throughout the world. In the one important point of "standing together so that the League of Nations, has no nations can make war" she

Annual Hospital Ball To Be Held On November 13

THE annual Jubilee Hospital ball will be held in the Empress Hotel, on Wednesday, November 13. It was announced by the board of directors, following its regular monthly meeting last night.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the Women's Auxiliary. Every effort is being made to make a festive function one of the most outstanding social features of the season.

League. It was admitted, had failed. Among the major examples of disputes that had been settled by the League were the Italo-Greek dispute over Corfu, the Franco-Italian dispute over Morocco, and the flare-up in Yugoslavia after the assassination of King Alexander. The peaceful administration of the Saar territory over a five-year period was an outstanding accomplishment, she stated.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

In the health and social programme were cited the fight against opium and against the white slave traffic.

It was surely an achievement that a disarmament conference should take place at all. She spoke also of the work of the International Court of Justice, which had delivered seventeen awards and sixteen advisory opinions.

In speaking of the Disarmament Conference, Dr. Anderson quoted Mr. Baldwin as having said that the important thing was the fact that people desired peace. Probably during the last ten years the thought of the world had turned more and more toward the metaphysical world. In the medical world the idea was being emphasized. The Mayo brothers were cited in this connection as adopting the attitude that "It was the mental outlook of the people that mattered."

"LEAGUE-MINDED"

"Governments have become League-minded. That is what should happen to the people themselves," said the speaker. Earl Gray had pointed out that the League had introduced the habit of working together, and made it possible for Prime Ministers to meet again together at Geneva without exciting suspicion or distrust. This also was very important.

"One of the things that is going to secure the final success of the League is that it should be lifted above politics," said Dr. Anderson, who deplored the rumour that the Canadian delegate to Geneva had been changed with the change of Government at Ottawa. This had not happened in Britain.

Figures attesting to the public faith in the League of Nations were quoted from statistics compiled following a mail ballot. Ninety-two per cent favored some form of the League; ninety-seven favored the reduction of armaments.

"If the League has failed, we are the League. If the people won't fight, there won't be a war," she said elsewhere, in bringing responsibility back to the people. The League was, after all, human, and would make human mistakes. Statesmen had been dominated by fear or had an axe to grind. If the Christian churches had stood behind the League strongly, it would be stronger.

Atonement Is Lesson On Sunday

"Doctrine of Atonement" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday. The golden text is, "We are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God" (II Corinthians v, 20).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto Him; and He laid His hands on every one of them, and healed them" (Luke iv, 40).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus taught the way of life by demonstration, that we may understand how this divine principle heals the sick, casts out error, and triumphs over death."

Professor J. King Gordon is under appointment by the executive of the General Council of the United Church of Canada as lecturer on Christian Ethics at the various church colleges and other centres. The arrangements in British Columbia and Alberta are being made from the Toronto headquarters by Da. Hugh Downey, of Vancouver, Western secretary of social service and evangelism. Professor Gordon left on Wednesday for his first lecture engagement at Prince Rupert, proceeding later to give a week to the students of Union College, Vancouver.

FEATHER IN HER HAT

by JULIA ARNE MOORE

CHAPTER XII
It was early afternoon before Ann came back. Every muscle of her body felt drawn and strained. Lee had seen her when she was still far down the mountain and the throbbing in his swollen knee had been momentarily forgotten while he watched her slow, laborious progress. Too, he had seen the canteen hanging from her shoulder and known by the way it had pulled on the straps that she had ("... Thank God!") found water.

"You'll never know what happened inside me when I saw the heaviness of this thing," he told her, holding the canteen aloft. Smilingly she handed him the canteen before throwing herself on the ground. She lay now with her arms thrown out, eyes closed, breathing audibly through her barely open mouth, marvelling that she had been able to do this thing at that moment, even before she had slipped to lean heavily against a tree, feeling that she had used up the last ounce of her strength.

Perhaps the hope of finding a stream down there, or the fear that she would not, had so completely absorbed her consciousness that there had been no opportunity to think of herself as she went down the mountain. Then she had caught the tiny twinkling sound of running water... at first a small stream twisting down a narrow, rock-walled gully; then, stumbling in her haste, she had come unexpectedly to an open space where the grass was Summer green beneath her feet, and overhead the wide canopy of sky was blue and warm and friendly. And at that moment, even before she had flung herself down for her first drink of the cold water, she decided that by some means she must bring Lee Monday here.

Carefully, Lee screwed the plug into place and laid the canteen on the ground. "Personally," he said, grinning, "I feel a thousand per cent better. How about you, Ann?" She grunted agreement, but her eyes remained closed. The rise and fall of her breasts beneath the leather coat was more regular now. "I found a place—perfectly beautiful. And in the open... We've got to get down there somehow..." Lee's head shook, hopelessly. "No, please, I'm afraid." He put a hand earnestly on his injured knee. "The hinge of this darn leg is broken, or something. Maybe—say—did you hear that?"

Ann was on her feet, starting up through the little jagged holes in the trees, straining her ears to catch that distant, hollow sound again. She heard nothing, but her eyes were heavy-breathing, but Lee cried, "It's a plane—it's a plane! He's coming this way. How—"

Ann's hands were on his shoulders, forcing him back. "They can't find us here, Lee. We're hidden. We might as well be in a tunnel as under these trees." The muffled exhaust of the plane was nearer now. Lee fumbled in his pockets. "Where are those matches, Ann? They ought to be dry by now. Hurry..."

Ann ran back with the matches and under Lee's directions raked up a little pile of leaves and twigs and pulled off a yard or more of torn linen from the fuselage. The moan of the motor was very near now and Lee's trained ears told him the plane was flying an irregular course, swinging from left to right and back again.

A hand cupped to protect the flame, Ann drew a match across a box-stone. "There was no flicker of flame, only a soft gray line across the rock."

Lee almost jumped at her. "Use the match box—Strike it on the box, Ann! It's almost here now. He'll be flying over in a second. Strike it, strike it!"

The full, even purr of the motor was a roar in her ears as Ann pulled the match along the sandpaper side of the box. The match head was like paint. She tried again. Again. In desperation she thrust the box into Lee's hand. He tried match after match.

His shoulders sagging, the flame of hope gone out of his eyes, Lee tossed the match box into the air. The hum became a continuous whining blast.

"Well," said Lee, "here we are." Ann said, gravely, "We've got to get down, Lee. It's open there. They'll be able to see us..."

And at least we'll have water. How he managed that long and sometimes treacherous descent, neither Ann nor Lee would be able to explain. It had seemed impossible before they started. Yet, they had done it.

They had been content with a minimum of salvage from the wrecked plane—two blankets, one fairly new and the other not only old and frayed but full of spike holes.

"It was a long while before Ann asked, 'Haven't you been asleep, Lee?'"

He said he had not. "But I'm getting dozy. Watching the deer ride his way up was fun, but I'll fall asleep now from sheer boredom."

When at last Lee had dragged back to his blanket and surrendered to an overpowering fatigue, Ann pulled her blanket about her head and pulled over one, twice, three times until she lay so near him she could feel his arm against her back.

The sun was in her eyes when she awoke, the sun and Lee's smiling reflection. He was sitting by her, bending over so that his face was just above her own.

"Good morning," Ann smiled, knowing, somehow, he had not meant to say that but something infinitely more tender. She made no effort to avoid him when his face came down to hers; she awoke, the sun and Lee's smiling reflection. He was sitting by her, bending over so that his face was just above her own.

from the luggage compartment; the foot-long flashlight; the two leather seat cushions, and the canteen. When Lee was settled on the edge of the clearing with his back to a tree and his injured leg resting on a cushion, Ann dropped the blanket she had worn as a pack and pulled the canteen strap over her head. "If you'll just be patient now," she said, whimsically, "I'll hurry supper all I can."

Lee watched her dark little figure moving across the clearings until she came to the plot of grass at the water's edge. They had had nothing to eat since dinner at Elmville last night and they might never eat again—but she could joke about it. How many men, he wondered, could have stood up under the strain of the past twenty-four hours so well? And yesterday he had thought of her as only a little animated girl who would never grow up and whose sole attractions were a delightful innocence and an infectious zest for life.

She came back and put the canteen in his hands. The canvas cover was cool and damp. "You'll find the steak a little rare," she said, smiling, "but most men like it that way."

He took the canteen from his mouth. "See here, young woman, it's had enough to be hungry without being reminded of rare steak." Ann said, "It's beautiful out there, Lee. I've never seen so many stars in my life, and when you bend down to drink from the stream, they're all round your face."

"I'd like to see the stars for a change," Lee said, quietly. "Couldn't we sleep out there, Ann?" Ann had been staring off through the blue darkness, lost in thought; but now she turned and took up the two blankets and the canteen. "All right," she said. "You hold the flashlight."

They were five minutes covering the distance that Ann had walked alone in one, but at last Lee sat on the grass and Ann spread the good blanket and helped him to slide on to it. She shook out the other blanket a few feet away and sat down, wearily. After a little she asked, "Suppose another plane does come along, Lee. During the night, I mean."

"You'd be surprised," Lee said. "From how far up you can see a flashlight... If you hear a ship, you hop up and move that flash around in a circle. Not fast, just enough to keep it moving."

"You think another plane may come over?"

"Certainly. If not tonight, tomorrow. They're probably combing the country for the right place. Lee was talking against his own convictions now, but his tone of voice did not betray him.

A silence fell. Ann lay back with a leather cushion under her head. "Puny how lovely and peaceful the world could seem when you were hungry and lost and wondering if you would ever be found..." She thought of her mother and father at home, of Rita waiting in Mollie's apartment in Washington, after her first day at the Census Bureau, probably thinking them both dead by now...

of Fuhrman Wells, a little pile of leaves and twigs and pulled off a yard or more of torn linen from the fuselage. The moan of the motor was very near now and Lee's trained ears told him the plane was flying an irregular course, swinging from left to right and back again.

A hand cupped to protect the flame, Ann drew a match across a box-stone. "There was no flicker of flame, only a soft gray line across the rock."

Lee almost jumped at her. "Use the match box—Strike it on the box, Ann! It's almost here now. He'll be flying over in a second. Strike it, strike it!"

The full, even purr of the motor was a roar in her ears as Ann pulled the match along the sandpaper side of the box. The match head was like paint. She tried again. Again. In desperation she thrust the box into Lee's hand. He tried match after match.

His shoulders sagging, the flame of hope gone out of his eyes, Lee tossed the match box into the air. The hum became a continuous whining blast.

"Well," said Lee, "here we are." Ann said, gravely, "We've got to get down, Lee. It's open there. They'll be able to see us..."

And at least we'll have water. How he managed that long and sometimes treacherous descent, neither Ann nor Lee would be able to explain. It had seemed impossible before they started. Yet, they had done it.

They had been content with a minimum of salvage from the wrecked plane—two blankets, one fairly new and the other not only old and frayed but full of spike holes.

"It was a long while before Ann asked, 'Haven't you been asleep, Lee?'"

He said he had not. "But I'm getting dozy. Watching the deer ride his way up was fun, but I'll fall asleep now from sheer boredom."

When at last Lee had dragged back to his blanket and surrendered to an overpowering fatigue, Ann pulled her blanket about her head and pulled over one, twice, three times until she lay so near him she could feel his arm against her back.

"Are you ashamed, really?" "I shouldn't have done it." "Are you ashamed, Lee? Are you sorry you did?"

"No."

"The last man who kissed me was..."

Lee stared at her. "The last man..."

He seemed half angry, but presently his arm encircled her shoulders and drew her close.

"Ann," he said hoarsely, "you're the sweetest thing God ever made..."

"If we ever get out of this..."

What they both heard then was the motor of the plane that was to direct the rescue party that went out on foot from Cairo, New York.

Before six o'clock Lee was in a Washington hospital and Ann was in her own bed in Elmville, Connecticut.

FIND DOUKHOBORS KILLED OFFICERS

Coroner's Jury Told R.C.M.P. Were Close on Trail of Hunted Trio of Slayings

CALGARY, Oct. 18 (C)—Sergeant T. S. Wallace and Constable George C. Harrison, Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers, did from bullet wounds inflicted by three young Doukhobors of Arran, Sask., a coroner's jury decided here last night.

Evidence at the inquest disclosed that police knew the bandit trio.

It was a long while before Ann asked, "Haven't you been asleep, Lee?"

He said he had not. "But I'm getting dozy. Watching the deer ride his way up was fun, but I'll fall asleep now from sheer boredom."

End Bad Cough Quickly, at One Fourth the Cost

Home-Mixed! No Cooking! Easy!

Thousands of housewives have found that by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a much more effective remedy. They use a recipe at only one-fourth the usual cost of cough medicine, but which really breaks up distressing coughs in a hurry.

From a drugist get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and add granulated sugar syrup to fill the bottle. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's so trouble at all, and makes a really effective remedy. Keeps perfectly and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, helping to clear the air passage and soothing away irritation has caused it to be used universally throughout Canada.

Pinex is a compound containing No. 1 Fine in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it does not please you in 10 days.

What Today Means

"LIBRA"

If October 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p.m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 12:45 to 2:45 p.m. and from 5:45 to 7:45 p.m.

Be careful your desire for pleasure does not cause you to overlook an important matter this day. Haste must be guarded against as it will be the cause of forgetfulness that will probably be the primary source of most of the day's troubles. You may have the opportunity of proving your loyalty to a friend this day. Let nothing swerve it, or useless regrets are apt to follow. Should your opinion be requested on a decidedly delicate subject, do not be afraid to express it, but do it diplomatically. Regardless of how great the temptation may be, do not repeat anything this day which has been confided to you. Do not help to turn any social gathering you may attend into a trading place for unkindly gossip. If unpleasant consequences are to be avoided, married and engaged couples, and those who are in love, must be careful to break no promise, if they expect this day to be peaceful.

If a woman and October 19 is your birthday, a good many people may not fully appreciate the depth of your character, due to your many great deal of it. As a hostess, re-times assuming a rather frivolous expert, educator, writer or clerical worker you are likely to find creative employment. As a wife and mother you possibly will find the greatest happiness.

The child born on October 19 when it reaches kindergarten age, must not be encouraged to criticize or find fault with either its school or teachers. Discipline is very essential in its formative years, so use common sense in this regard.

Teachers generally deserve the parents' co-operation rather than their criticism. If a man and October 19 is your natal day, if you will regard life seriously, and not as a huge joke, your advancement probably will be rapid. Law, medicine, chemistry, theology and painting are among the activities that are most likely to bring you a substantial reward.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE
CHEMAINUS, Oct. 18.—Rev. H. Evans M. Dank, of Vancouver, began his pastorate at Galvary Baptist Church here last Sunday, when the annual Thanksgiving services were held. The entire front of the church was massed with fruits of the field, huge loaves of homemade bread and an abundance of flowers. Special music was provided by the Knights of Pythias orchestra, and by Mr. Dank, who gave an organ recital, and was heard in a duet with Mr. H. Smiley. The subject for the evening was "The Withering of the Fig Tree."

A proud father called at a local office and asked for "a form for the eternity benefit." "The what?" asked a member of the staff. "Eternity benefit," repeated the applicant. "Do you know the meaning of 'eternity'?" he was asked by the assistant, who explained that eternity meant the hereafter. "Yes," said the applicant, "and that's what I'm here after."

COMEDY TEAM IN
PARAMOUNT FILM

Amos and Andy Provide Feature in Capitol's "Big Broadcast of 1936"

Amos 'n' Andy, world-famous black face comedians, took a course in screen-writing from Jack Mintz, Paramount scenarist, and proved such apt pupils that they were advised to devote additional efforts to the films to supplement their radio writing.

Mintz was assigned to aid the comedians in screen technique when they composed a skit for their specialty number in Paramount's "The Big Broadcast of 1936," coming today to the Capitol Theatre, with Jack Oakie, Burns and Allen and Lyda Roberti in the leading roles. The pair are seen in one of their typically characteristic portrayals in the radio comedy.

In addition to Amos 'n' Andy are many other noted personalities of stage, screen and radio, including Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman, Bill Robinson, Nicholas Brothers, Ray Noble and his band, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles, all of whom have specialties as a background to the main theme of the picture, "The Big Broadcast of 1936," which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre, places its romantic stars, Frances Lederer and Frances Dee, and Ray Noble.

are Donald Cook and Irene Hervey, featured in the story.

COLUMBIA

Ann Dvorak had an opportunity to acquire a perfect sun tan while engaged on the First National air thriller, "Murder in the Clouds," which is now showing at the Columbia Theatre. The company spent several weeks on location in the mountains and Ann was outdoors all the time.

DOMINION

The boy was unbelievably rich, handsome and a royal prince, yet he pretended to be nobody. The girl was young and lovely, enjoying a mad merry fling at life with her last five thousand—and her first. And then they met! There, in a nutshell, is the delicious, mirth-provoking situation in which Fox Film's "The Gay Deception," now at the Capitol Theatre, places its romantic stars, Frances Lederer and Frances Dee, and Ray Noble.

PLAYHOUSE

If Frances Drake should ever decide to give up her acting career, she will develop her sketching talents, along commercial lines. Miss Drake is considered quite adept as a sketcher. The actress is featured with Elissa Landi, Paul Cavanagh and Kent Taylor in Paramount's "Without Regret," now at the Playhouse Theatre. Harold Lloyd directed the film.

PROVINCIAL TENNIS RATINGS ARE ANNOUNCED

World's Champion Defeats McConachy In Cue Exhibition

Winding up his evening's match with a splendid break of 284 points, the highest break of the game, Walter Lindrum, Australian cue wizard and world billiards champion, defeated Clark McConachy, New Zealand titleholder, 770 to 393, yesterday evening at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium in the first of three exhibition fixtures to be played during their visit to this city.

They will play again this afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, and wind up their short exhibition tour of Victoria this evening at 8 o'clock. In addition to the exhibition billiards match, snooker, trick shots by Lindrum and McConachy, and a lecture by the world champion will be presented.

Before an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, Alderman Alex Peden, himself a keen follower of the game, tendered an official welcome from the city of Victoria to Lindrum and McConachy, and congratulated the Irish brothers, Bert and Charlie, owners of the Metropolitan Billiard Parlors, for bringing such outstanding players to the city.

SHOWS FINE FORM

Demonstrating wonderful control of the cue and a smooth easy stroke, Lindrum and his partner, McConachy, played nice billiards. Many times they made what looked like difficult shots, with apparent ease, and the audience, from the deeply interested gallery showed exactly how much their efforts were appreciated. Both players displayed their ability with nursery cannons and ran off many valuable points by this method. There were times when the balls would just move as the fine touch of the players was clearly demonstrated. Lindrum, the champion, displayed a smoother stroke than his opponent, and literally made the balls do everything but talk. McConachy, however, showed some excellent strokes, particularly with his draw shots.

Walter Lindrum, the champion, had breaks of 284, 263, 81, and a number of runs ranging from 11, his smallest, to 41. McConachy's best break was 137. He also had breaks of 107, 59 and a number of smaller runs from 9 to 36.

SNOOKER MATCH

Playing in an exhibition snooker match, Clark McConachy, New Zealand, defeated Bert Irish, Victoria, one of the leading players in British Columbia, 57 to 40. Both players made a number of excellent shots. An interesting lecture and demonstration of many shots that were easy for the champion, but difficult for the average player, was given by Walter Lindrum. The apparent ease with which Lindrum played the snooker was remarkable, and his efforts drew the applause of the fans.

Trick shots by Lindrum and McConachy drew much laughter and praise from the gallery. Sid Beech, former British Columbia amateur billiards champion, acted as referee. In the special competition staged at the conclusion of the trick-shot exhibition, Harry Robinson, city champion, with a break of 58, won the special cue bearing pictures of Lindrum and McConachy, from a field of approximately twenty-five players.

NEW STABLES AT TANFORAN

Bing Crosby, Mrs. Westrope and J. S. Riley Move Horses South

TANFORAN RACE TRACK, Cal., Oct. 18.—Three stables will en route to Tanforan within the next few days, according to latest advice received here. Bing Crosby, noted radio and screen star, is shipping ten head from Southern California. Mrs. W. T. Westrope is sending out seven fast thoroughbreds from Dallas, Texas, and J. S. Riley is shipping his extensive stable from Coney Island.

With more than 1,000 thoroughbreds already in training and new strings checking in each week, Tanforan has the strongest array of horses which have campaigned here in recent years.

Cloud D'Or leads the Westrope string. This fast sprinter, which raced on the Coast last spring, has taken some of the best speedsters in the Chicago sector into camp this summer. Another clever member of the Westrope stable is the good three-year-old filly, Vanita. Jockey Jack Westrope, leading rider in California before and ranked as one of the best boosters in racing today.

NEW ON COAST

The Riley stable is a new one to the Pacific Coast. The classy handicapper, born happy, the clever sprinter, the steady and other good ones are in his string. Bing Crosby has some useful, although not outstanding stars in his stable. His rider, Apprentice Bill Martin, is already riding here daily. The invading handicapper stars will find plenty of opposition already on the grounds and in action. Among others, Azucar, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, is in training now after a few days' rest from his long trip out from Detroit. His first definite engagement is the Golden Gate Handicap on November 2 at a mile and one-sixteenth. It is likely, however, that he will face the barrier in an overnight handicap or two prior to the Golden Gate.

Remember When

(Twenty-Five Years Ago)

The report that the North Ward soccer team would be unable to "come back" this season was discounted on Sunday, when the eleven went to Ladysmith and engaged in a match with the seniors of that town. They were successful, winning by two goals to one after a close and altogether strenuous match. The home team, from all accounts, was out in full force, which is taken as an indication that when the Island series for the championship is introduced the Victoria team won't have a bad chance of taking the honors. The Victorians had a jolly good time. They were well treated.

An agitation is simmering among basketball players having as its object the inauguration of the playing season a little earlier this year than in 1935.

E. Christopher, secretary of the Victoria Association, has been approached by the representatives of several local clubs, asking that the date of the annual meeting be fixed as soon as possible. Usually this gathering takes place on the first

CONNIE MACK EXPECTED TO MAKE TRADES

Veteran Manager of Athletics Pondering Over Another Big Deal

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18 (AP).—You can pretty well write it down now—almost anything is likely to happen when Connie Mack lifts the lid on the baseball pot that has been boiling for weeks with rumors of deals involving his Athletics.

Connie Mack

League, reached a new high overnight with receipt of word the A's lean leader was in New York, possibly considering another of his history-making deals. Leading the possibilities were these: That Jimmy Fox, first baseman and top-flight slugger, would go to either the Chicago White Sox, Boston Red Sox or the Cleveland Indians.

That Pinky Higgins, one of the classic third basemen in the league, is slated for the New York Yankees.

That Roger (Fitt) Cramer, outfielder extraordinary, will be with the White Sox or Red Sox when 1936 rolls around.

That infielder Eric McNair is headed for the Yankees.

That one or all of these deals may be consummated; that none may go through, particularly because of the price that Mack is said to be putting on the players, or that the deals may be shuffled around so that one or the other of the sale prospects will be with some club not mentioned as his destination.

ALEKHINE WINS

UTRECHT, The Netherlands, Oct. 18 (AP).—Dr. Alexander Alekhine, of Paris, today won the fourth game of his match for the chess championship of the world when Dr. Max Euwe, of Amsterdam, his opponent for the honor, resigned after forty-one moves. Alekhine has won four games, Dr. Euwe one, and two have been drawn. The eighth game will be played Sunday at Amsterdam.

Young Seattle Boy Had Big Day at Tanforan Track—Pilots High Tension in Feature—Crowd of 10,000 Present at Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18 (AP).—High Tension, with Russell Sperry up, won today's feature race at Tanforan track. The time for the six furlongs was 1:12 1-5.

It was Sperry's fourth win of the day and gave the seventeen-year-old Seattle youth the leadership for riding honors at this meeting. It gave him a total of twelve firsts.

High Tension, making his first start of the meet, broke slowly, but was up in time to win by three lengths, going away. Trysome, the favorite, set the pace, but could not hold out and finished second. Instigator was third.

A crowd of some 10,000 was on hand and betting was brisk. The winner paid $11.20, $4.80 and $3. Trysome returned $4.20 and $3.60, and Instigator $3.40.

CUP TOURNEY ENDS SUNDAY

Colanist Trophy Competition To Continue Tomorrow At Macaulay

Final eighteen holes medal play on handicap for the coveted Colanist Cup will be run off tomorrow at the Macaulay Point Golf Club, with thirty-two shoemakers facing the starter. Over the opening eighteen, last week, A. Bus took the lead, but the field is now well bunched and therefore the pacesetter will have to be at his best to lift the silverware. The competitor with the best net for the thirty-six holes will take possession of the trophy.

Tomorrow's draw follows: 9:00 a.m.—J. W. Holyoak, G. A. Bruce, S. A. Keeble and A. E. Sloomb.

9:05 a.m.—C. S. Brown, W. G. Watson, A. Johnston and J. R. Stone.

Brawn and Jean Milne Head B.C. Tennis Rankings

Vancouver Players Dominate Ratings Released by Provincial Association—Ross Hocking Given Fifth Berth—Kay Grogan and Kay Unsworth Are Placed on Junior List

VANCOUVER, Oct. 18 (P).—Vancouver stars captured all but one place in the men's and women's rankings announced tonight by the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Association.

Jack Brawn, dynamic Vancouver tennis club member, who has been knocking at the doors of title fame in the province for some five years and this year captured the city championship leads the men's list, principally due to his stellar showing in the Western Canada and the Dominion tournaments.

Doug Cameron from Jericho, runner-up to Brawn in the city title fight, was placed second, with young Phil Pearson, Point Grey Junior, third.

Ross "Bud" Hocking, lone Victorian to gain a place in the rankings, was fifth, ahead of Graham Berley, of Jericho.

The two Milne sisters topped the women's list with Jean first and Susie second.

A start was made in junior rankings with three Vancouver youths the only ones listed in the junior boys. Vancouver Island stylists were well represented, however, in the junior girls.

Kay Staples, of Duncan, was ranked first with Kay Grogan and Kay Unsworth, of Victoria, fourth and fifth, respectively.

The rankings:

MEN
One—Jack Brawn, Vancouver Tennis Club.
Two—D. Cameron, Jericho Tennis Club.
Three—Phil Pearson, Point Grey Tennis Club.
Four—Graham Verley, Jericho.
Five—R. "Bud" Hocking, Victoria.
Six—G. E. Sparring, Jericho.
Seven—Ed Frost, Jericho.
Eight—Colin Milne, Vancouver Tennis Club.
(Only eight ranked).

WOMEN
One—Jean Milne, B.C. Electric.
Two—Susie Milne, B.C. Electric.
Three—Mrs. Mary Hagart, Vancouver Club.
Four—Marjorie Greig, Vancouver.
Five—Phyllis White, Jericho.
Six—Vera O'Shea, Vancouver.

JUNIOR BOYS
One—Kay Staples, Duncan.
Two—Margaret Callaway, North Vancouver.
Three—Dorothy Grier, Denman Club, Vancouver.
Four—Kay Grogan, Victoria.
Five—Kay Unsworth, Victoria.

JUNIOR GIRLS
One—Kay Staples, Duncan.
Two—Margaret Callaway, North Vancouver.
Three—Dorothy Grier, Denman Club, Vancouver.
Four—Kay Grogan, Victoria.
Five—Kay Unsworth, Victoria.

STEELE SCORES
Technical Kayo Over Berglund

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP).—Fred Steele, Tacoma welterweight, scored a six-round technical knockout victory over Swede Berglund, of San Bernardino, in a scheduled ten-round bout at the Legion Stadium here tonight.

The winner weighed 154 pounds, and Berglund 161.

Steele was awarded a technical knockout after he opened a deep gash over Berglund's eye at the start of the sixth stanza. The wound gushed blood, and Referee Jack Kennedy rushed in to examine the fighter. He decided to allow the boxer to continue, but when the Tacoma fighter hammered Berglund around the ring, the referee halted hostilities.

Berglund was down for an eight count in the third, but came back to make a fine showing and win the fourth. Steele won the first two rounds and the fifth was even.

CRESCENTS IN PUCK VICTORY

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18 (P).—Winding up Lester Patrick's hockey school, New York Crescents emerged with honors tonight to take the third game of an exhibition series, 10-4, from All-Canada. Crescents won the first game, 7-4, while All-Canada took the second 10-1.

With every player on the ice trying for promotion to the moneyed ranks, they put on a grand show of speed, stickhandling and hockey tricks. Bert Gardiner, star goalie in the Eastern United States amateur circuit last year, was a big reason for All-Canada not ringing the goal bell more often.

Four Crescents players armed with double counters, Murray Armstrong from Regina; Neil Colville, Crescent centre; Dunc Farmer, coach of Saskatoon, Wexley, 1934 Western Canada Junior champion, and Joe Krol, Winnipeg, each had two. Their other counters came from Joe Cooper and Murray Patrick.

Scorers for All-Canada were Mel Nielsen, Saskatoon, Wexley; Walter Pratt, mainstay of Kenora Thistles for the past two years; Clarence Shillington and Eddie O'Keefe, stalwarts from North Battleford Braves.

Lewis Expects To Defeat Olin In Title Bout

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18 (AP).—John Henry Lewis, dinky challenger for the world's light heavyweight crown, rubbed his rabbit's foot today, peered into the future, and saw himself where his friend, Joe Louis, is apparently heading—at the top of his class.

The hard-punching Arizona Negro predicted he would knock out Champion Bob Olin in six rounds or less in their fifteen-round bout for the title here October 21.

"I've beaten the person who was champion three times in the past couple of years," he said. "Twice I beat Rosenbloom (Maxie the slapper), when he had the title and last winter I gave Bob Olin a drubbing. The championship was never at stake in these fights though, so I've just had to be content to be the man who beat the champion."

FLIGHT...by W. D. TIPTON and J. H. MASON

WHEN THE FUEL IS CONSUMED, THEY RETRACT THE POWER PLANT TO REDUCE HEAD RESISTANCE, AND ENJOY THE THRILL OF MOTORLESS FLIGHT.

To obtain aviation's greatest thrill, true soaring flight, sail plane pilots must be launched from hillside into ascending winds and thereafter hope to pick up thermal currents which will carry them to altitudes where they may hop from one aerial elevator to the next.

An alternative is to have the sail plane towed from the ground to soaring altitudes where the soarer cuts loose from the tow plane and carries on.

British soaring pilots have developed a tiny nine h.p. engine which is sufficient to enable the sail plane to get off and up to altitude. Only one half gallon of fuel is carried—sufficient to last until the proper altitude is attained. When it is exhausted, the pilot simply folds his power plant into the fuselage where it offers no resistance to soaring flight, and continues on as a simple sail plane.

The entire weight of the sail plane, motor and pilot, was 330 pounds, which means that the 9 h.p. engine lifted nearly sixty pounds per horsepower, truly a remarkable figure when it is realized that twenty-five pounds is considered an excellent power loading for normal airplanes.

"SPOONING"
Spoonng, that good old universally practised custom observed by those in love—is a nautical metaphor.

Spoonng, that is, exhibiting affection foolishly, is a corruption of the word "spoon," which, in turn, is derived from the Latin "spumare," meaning to froth or to foam.

Originally, "spoonng" was the term applied to a boat, which, endeavoring to weather a heavy gale, was compelled to go before the strong wind, to ride out the effort.

Metaphorically then the term came to be applied to people who, under the sway of their ebullient
